THE WITHROW ANNUAL 1928

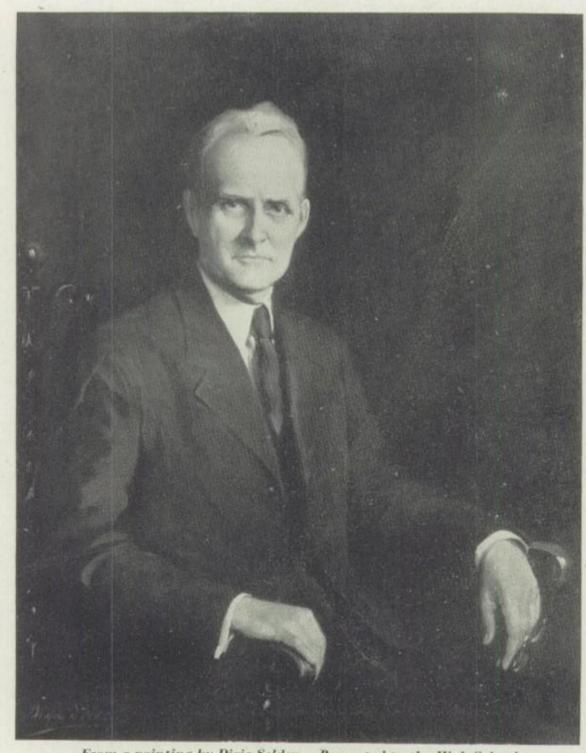

Tom Me Hugh

FOREWORD

ODERN art, modern diction, modern arrangement,
—a modern annual. These have been the ideals toward which all of us have striven in the production of this book.

To accomplish such high standards we have sought the aid of persons who have had valuable experience in those matters. Since Miss Conner, Miss Green, and Mr. Fieger have been so willing to give their able assistance, this annual has been made possible.

> Laural Dandus Leonard De Ruiter

OUR SCHOOL

DEAR WITHROW

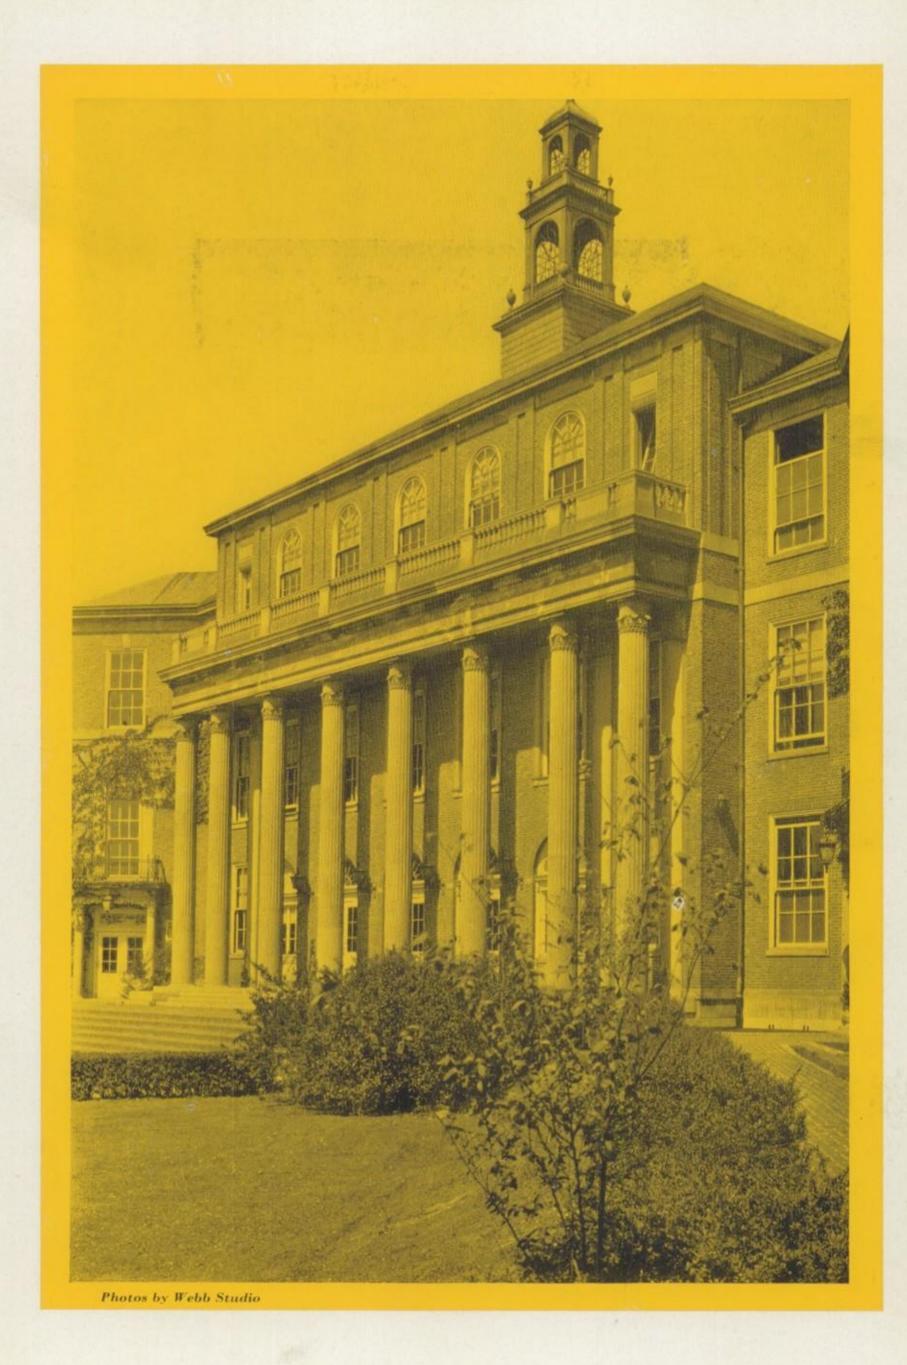

(Tune: "Maryland, My Maryland")
All honor we would give to thee,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.
Thou hast our deepest loyalty,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.
Advancing days impression made.

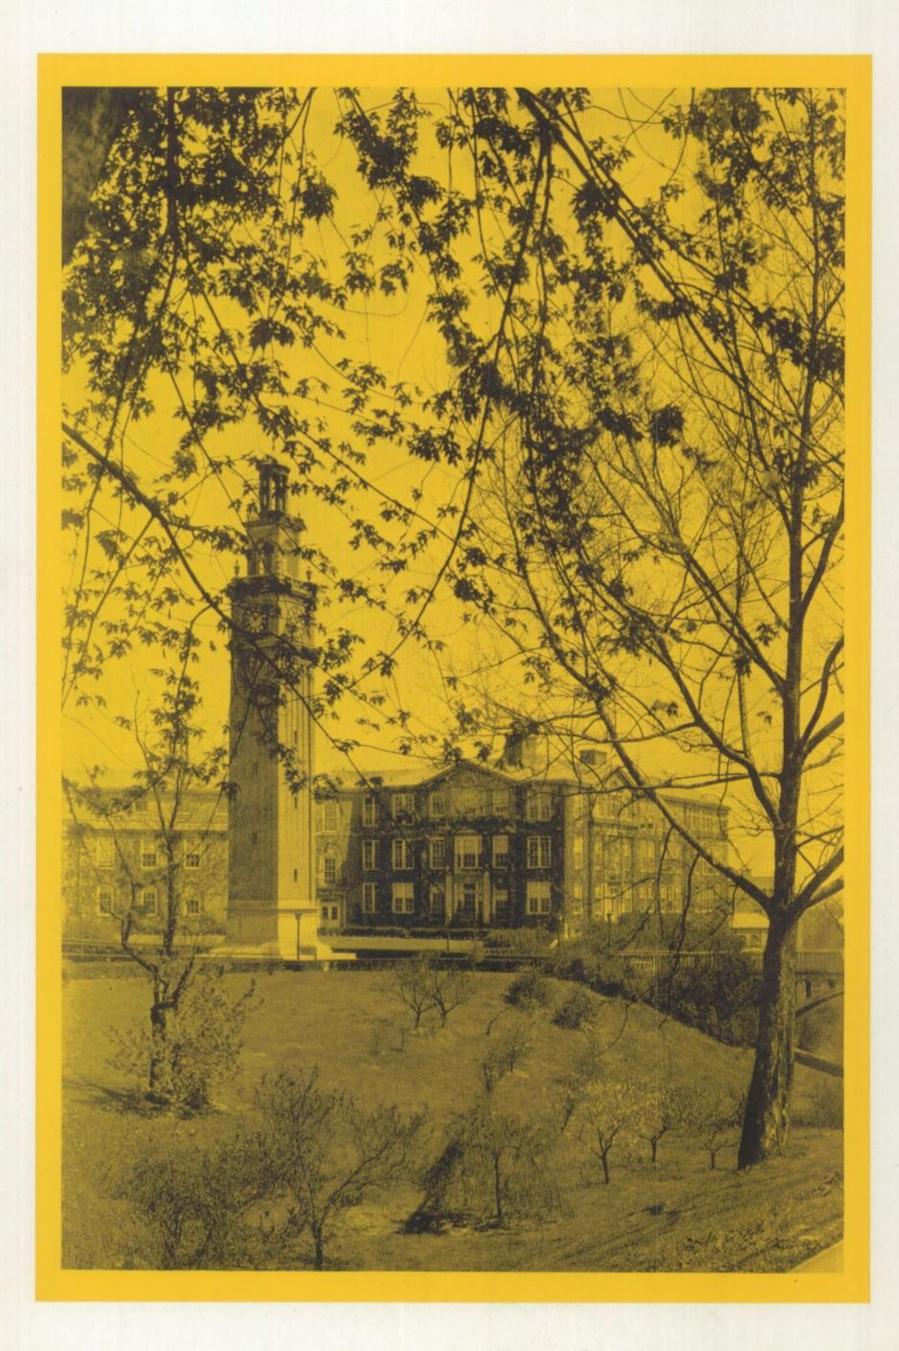

Advancing days impression made,
Within the many students stayed,
A better school was never made,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.

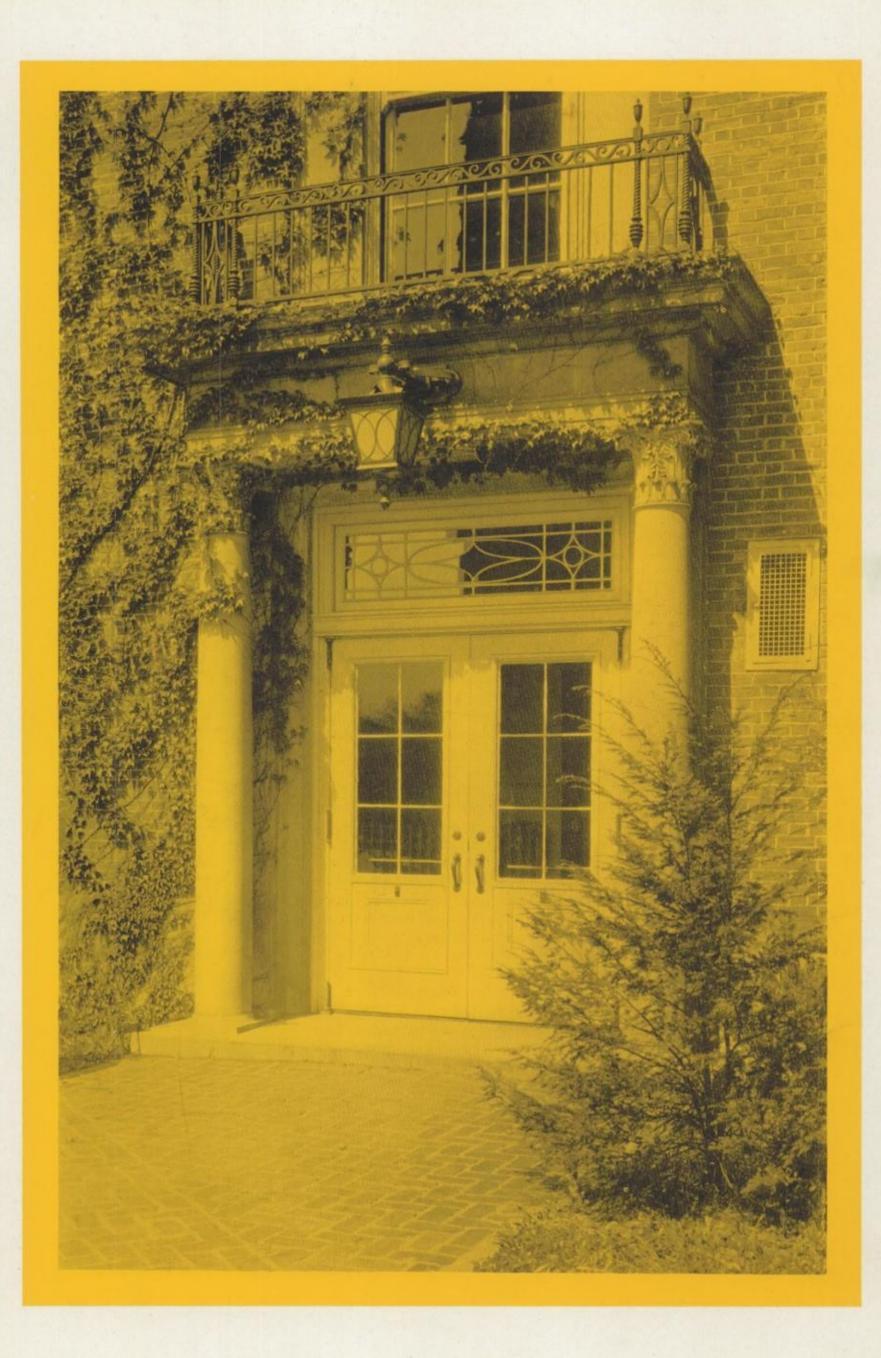

Oh, where would we have been, today,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High,
Had not your teachers shown the way,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High?
Life's race we ne'er could hope to run,
Each barrier we'd have to shun,
But for your part so nobly done,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.

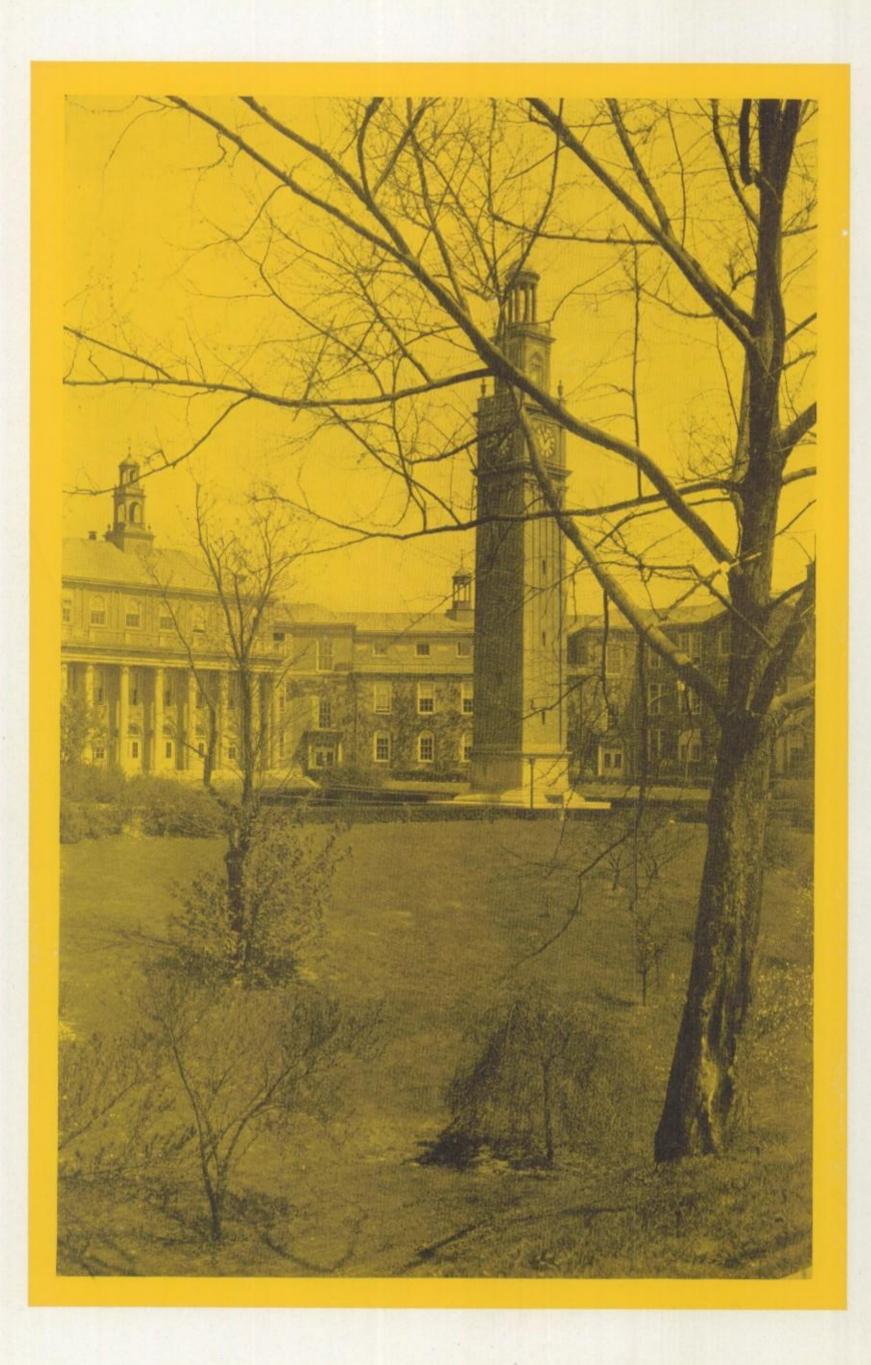

That which you taught we'll ne'er forget,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.
To you we owe a mighty debt,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.
Gone are the days we loved so true,
Whose shies so bright with roseate hue.
But honor still remains with you,
Withrow High, dear Withrow High.

BRIGHT YEARS

These have been bright years, these have been gay,
These four years at Withrow which passed my way.
Like soldiers of fortune, they came with high hope,
They rode with a flourish, and went with a lope.

The first came a-riding out of the East,
He was the youngest, he was the least;
He rode a white pony, he rode very slow,
He wore a green habit, his face held a glow
Of keen expectation, of deeds to be done;
The boy sang blithely, and gazed at the sun.

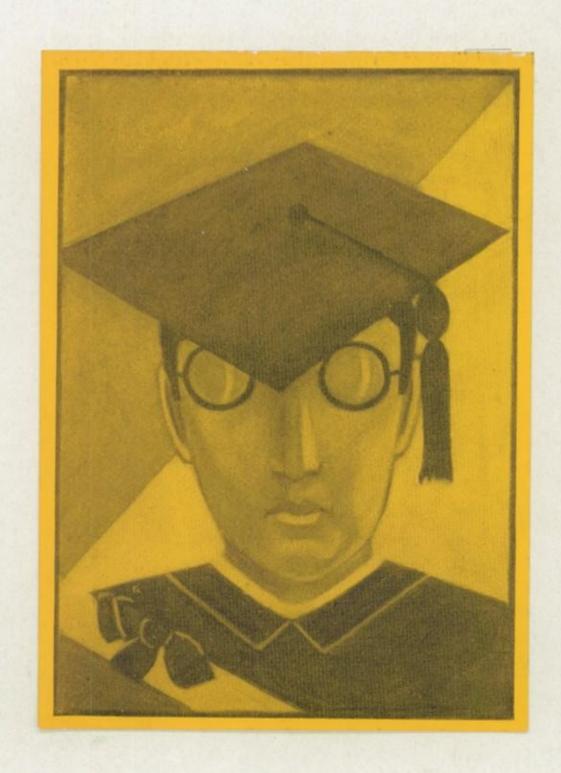

The next came, haughty, upon a high steed,
Blue was his banner, a canter, his speed;
A little top-heavy, a little bit proud,
He sang of himself, his head in a cloud;
He passed me by with a grand fanfare,
Long I'll remember, long shall I care.

The eyes of the third were alight as he went;
He urged on his charger, and rode, saddlespent,
Ever on, ever forward, so eager for gain
He dug his spurs and gave his steed rein;
He rode with such ardor, whipped by like a flash,
I loved his bold spirit, his high-mettled dash.

The last came galloping, a fearful pace,
Hardpressed by Time, he ran a race.
He was a leader, he held his head high,
But wistful his glance as he passed me by;
Though headed for honors, esteemed with the best,
He fain would have tarried, he longed for sweet rest.

These were four bright years, these were so gay,
These soldiers of fortune, which passed my way,
They brought me a vision, they gave me a dream,
Taught me a watchword—follow the gleam!
Went to the West of the setting sun,
Left me a memory when day is done.

SENIORS

SENIORS

WHEN the class of '28 entered Withrow, no rivers burst into flames and no delegation of prominent citizens appeared to wish it godspeed. Its arrival was quiet and unnoticed—at least, to such an extent as was compatible with the character of the class of students who composed it. Having been appraised by the upper classmen as a typical body of those children who 'get smaller every year', the class went about its business in a self-contained way and eventually became sophomores.

As was only natural, some signs of life began to become evident. The intellectuals, the athletes, the organizers, etc., were sorted out and tabulated. But still it was a case of Birdie wait a little longer'. The sophomore class performed its duties in a dignified and commendable manner and turned into juniors.

Then the real spirit of the class became apparent. The scope of its interests and activities, wide enough during the two years preceding, acquired a greater breadth. The realization of the fine heritage which would soon come into its possession was a powerful appeal that called forth every bit of the class' effort. In the pursuit of those qualities which were necessary to the completion of true Withrowites, the students found great happiness. That junior year was indeed a precious one.

And at last we were seniors!

Recall the thrill of our sudden cognizance of influence and responsibility. Recall the first days of the year, when to walk down the hall was to walk on a scholastic Olympus, at once present and remote. Recall also, if you wish, the gradual deflation that occurred as we concluded that the year before us was to be one of unstinting work and study.

Work and study there may have been, but our students were not apalled. History, Chemistry, Math.—difficult studies all, but the number of seniors on the high average list demonstrated the fact that hard subjects were always met with increased application.

And there are other things that can be discussed with as great pride.

Football! For four years the Cornell Cup had been yearning to come home, and in the season of '27 it achieved its ambition. The Tigers beat the Big Reds 18 to 6.

Basketball, too. Those games were great. After having been deprived for a year, of the pleasure of watching the bunny droppers, the students turned out like true patriots, and got their fill of the electric game.

What about track and swimming? Plenty! Both teams brought in enough silverware to satisfy the most exacting demands of an appreciative student body. In fact, all athletics flourished as seldom before.

And in the school. How many of us railed at the unkind fate who ruled that all the clubs we liked best should meet on the same day? How many of us deplored the fact that we had not had a chance to select studies of a tempting and useful nature, which could not possibly have been crowded onto our programs.

The assemblies and parties of this year will always be pleasant memories to us. The things done and said as we went about our ordinary tasks will often come back to us in the future and make us laugh, or sigh.

But at last we are leaving Withrow.

Each one of us takes with him pride and hope and strength.

Pride in the things we have done. Pride in the institutions we have preserved and handed on. Pride in the classes who gave us those institutions, and in the classes who will accept them after us.

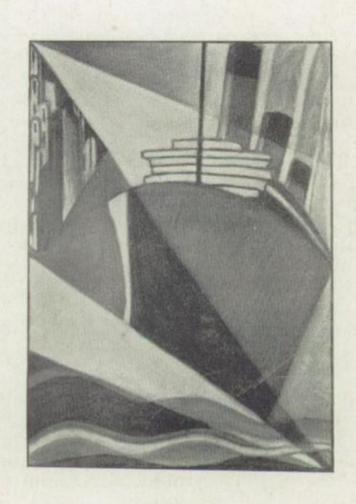

Hope for the years to come, our own years and the years of the school. Hope for the deeds we shall accomplish in her name. Hope for the future of our friends who have been with us for so long.

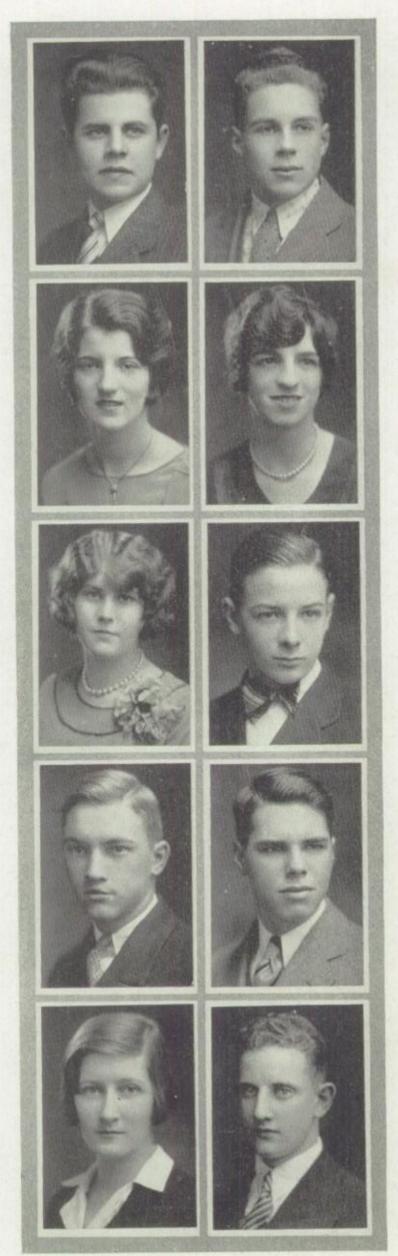

Strength in the thought that by our school we have been prepared for the battle to come. Strength in the knowledge that while such schools as Withrow, and such pupils as Withrowites, remain, whatever good we may do in the world will not be wasted.

These three gifts we shall cherish above all.

HISTORY OF CLASS OF '28

\LASS of '28, take out your annual for 1925, and look back at the last set of group pictures under the label of "Freshmen." Look at the sea of faces which was then mostly unknown, but now after four years have become familiar. Four years ago! Having reached the senior step, does it seem possible that we were ever so afraid, so timid, and so strange as we were then? The first days at school are always filled with hardships, but our September as freshmen was unusually difficult. How the upper classmen ridiculed us just because we entered the wrong room, asked simple directions, or dropped our books! The first time that we saluted the flag, which was in our best style, we learned that we had done it in true freshman manner. The seniors, the juniors, and the sophomores laughed at us. As we look back at our freshman days,-to us, days of new-born, unheard of freedom, days of glorious delight in the satisfaction that we should not always be at the lowest step, days of calm and quiet content, it is no wonder the upper classes knew us as freshmen.

But upper class attitude soon permeated into our being and we acquired auditorium etiquette and true Withrow lunch-room behavior. We even discovered that if we ran in the halls we should get "detention," and if we whistled or sang, we certainly annoyed other people.

We had not been at school long before we anxiously asked about football. Faint rumors were heard about the halls. Our curiosity became so strong that we finally began to inquire definitely about it. Some condescending, kind hearted senior informed us that the stadium, on some Friday night, was the only place to learn. Of course, we went to the stadium in scores and gave our support to the Tiger team by cheering lustily. The outcome of that football season was not to be boasted of, but we did not care, for we still had three more years.

Thanksgiving brought the first long holidays of our first year. Upon our return we found in the most popular room, the lunch-room, two large mural paintings which the Art League had bought. Close upon Thanksgiving came a new sport, namely basket-ball. As freshmen are never appreciated on the teams, we again sat along the side lines, looking on and cheering the boys in defeat as well as in victory.

Spring came and the warm weather made us drowsy. We were inclined to leave our studies for the far more pleasant pastime of "day dreaming." However, whispers of "exams" soon interrupted our blissfully leisurely days. Those dreadful things upon us again! Dreams must be left to the future. The wee, preceding them, and during our "hair-raising" exams, remarks were heard about "graduation" and "annuals," two subjects of which we knew very little. Our final exams kept us too busy to inquire, although most everyone was carrying a large leather book.

When the last day of school came and we returned for our reports, we found that the people we knew as "seniors" were gone. To our great surprise we also found that we were not freshmen. The report cards were returned for the final time and up in the corner was a red "C". Hurrah! we were now sophomores!

Seniors, can you forget that proud, confident feeling we had when we returned to school in September as sophomores? New books, new friends, new teachers occupied our thoughts completely for several weeks. We laughed heartily at the new "freshies," gayly forgetful of the fact that only a short year before the same appellation was hurled at us. Upon greeting old friends, vacation experiences were told and retold, and then quickly forgotten.

With a mighty roar, football had come upon the horizon. Who will forget that short triumphant season? The Hughes-Withrow game was fought in our own stadium and Withrow won! The mad hilarious emotion of the Withrow students was something never to be forgotten. Then, the crash! In the morning papers, in which we hoped to live over again our triumph, large headlines blazoned forth a protest against two of our players. We were breathless, and it was not until the state commissioner declared one of the players eligible that our heavy hearts were somewhat lightened. Hughes, showing real sportsmanship, refused the Cornell Cup, saying that they preferred to win it on the gridiron. Football for the year was over.

Exams! Such questions! Such grades! At every turn they faced us like grim specters. When they were over, our resolutions for earnest and hard study were interrupted by the far more exciting life of basket-ball. We were obliged to be satisfied with second place. Then we had our annual carnival, the "Faculty Game." We saw our teachers not as prim, grouchy, and humorless people, but as human beings who loved fun, life and gaiety.

Parents Day was a novelty to us, even as sophomores. We certainly were interested in visiting the rooms of our friends. Can you forget the radio and electric display in the physics rooms or the good tea, which was served in the Model Apartment?

June brought Commencement for the eniors, but for us, completion of our second year. Over the bridge for the third time! Gone was the feeling of timidity and haughtiness, for in its place was a feeling of being at home. We did not take the shortest way, but used the main door as real upperclassmen. In the front corridor was a list of our program directions; the third floor was for us. Did we object to climbing the stairs? No, we were too glad to be juniors. With new programs came new friends, and after two years we should have been able to answer the required information on the "first day enrollment cards."

A new club, for girls, was organized, the G. A. A. This means "cirls Athletic Association."

All girls athletics in high school are to be under the auspices of this club. Any girl is free to join.

While football was being practiced, we "went out" for hockey, one of the crowning fall sports. In all kinds of weather we were out in the practice field and the dint of hard work put us into first place when we defeated the seniors. We certainly were proud of the letters, which we received and which designated champions. We lost "nary a game" during the entire season.

Football! The season opened with a grand rush and fine play; even our first game was a victory! We were in line for the championship. Excitement ran high! Pom poms and "mums" were sold to the students and anything that was orange, that could be borrowed or seized was carried. The last and the most spectacular game was played at the University Stadium. The Hughes-Withrow Game! A solid block of Orange and Black on one side, on the other the swaying Red of Hughes. The mob of expectant, yelling, buoyant Withrow students was sure of victory, but Hughes was also sure of that game. When Hughes made their first and only score of 7, they were wild with joy. The game continued; an eternity of time dragged out; the cold was intense; the end drew nearer and nearer and still Withrow could not score. First quarter! Second quarter! Third quarter! Still no score! Then a break in the defensive line! Up! Up the field we went, until we were over the goal line! The yelling! Screaming! Stamping! The cold was forgotten. Withrow was wild! Silence! The teams were lining up for the extra point! The mass of spectators was tense. Slowly, but with precision and certainty, the oval pigskin went over the post. The score was tie! Screeches, howls, and whistles of joy cut the air. We threw anything and everything. Pom poms! Flowers! Books! Hats! When the final whistle blew we Withrowites poured out of the U. C. stadium over the field, hugging every friend and fellow student. So one of the most exciting football seasons closed. There was no Interscholastic Basket-ball that year, but Home Room Basket-ball was encouraged. The girls class team of '28 were champions of class Basket-ball.

In April two events will be remembered, one was the dramatic production of "Sherwood." Although we had read "Sherwood" when we were "sophs" never did we appreciate it until we saw it dramatized. Of all the dramatic performances given by our school, none of them have had the co-operation which produced "Sherwood." The other thing remembered in April, was the Junior party for the girls. The entertainment was composed of amateur acts. Most of them "brought the house down" because they were so natural, original, and funny.

Events moved slowly along until the Annual Concert in June (which was one of the best ever given). The Boys Glee Club, singing "Old King Cole", took the honors for the evening. Vacation, long looked forward to, was close on our heels and we, on the last day took our reports and left school for a short time. We were to return soon as S-E-N-I-O-R-S.

All summer we looked forward to being "Seniors." Oh, the honor! As we entered school again, we were sorry September had come for it meant our last year-our last return and our last real reunion of the class of '28. Next spring there would be no "See you next year." However, this feeling, as a coat of summer tan, soon wore off. The Freshmen! They were our special care. Since it was their first year and our last, we, in a comradely way, aided them, not without our "mite" of fun. We sent a few of the bolder ones in the wrong rooms, or if they were too frisky, we sent them in the wrong direction. Just the same, all mistakes were not made by the freshmen. We sometimes entered the wrong room, since the larger rooms had been made into two, to accommodate our ever growing student body.

For the last time, the football season came. What can we say about "our" season? Words fail us! The results beggar description. We defeated all the city high schools. Hughes, our ever ready rival, was defeated by a pleasing score. We were City Champions. The title alone holds little glory, but with the title was the Cornell Cup. The Cornell Club of Cincinnati, in 1920, gave the Cup to any city public high school having three years of champion football. For two years the Cup had hung in the air. Hughes had two legs on it! We had two! This year was to be the deciding year. We, as champions, had the honor of returning the Cup to "Our Trophy Case", to stay forever,

While the boys were playing football, we girls "went out" for hockey. After being champions last year we wanted to be "Champs" again. The championship was one step before us, when we lost a game to the juniors. Now they tied with us for first place. An extra game was played. Grimly we fought! We won! We had proved our prowess, and our record for the two years was blotted only by one defeat.

Time sped! Exams again! We believed that we had outgrown "exam-fear." Oh, what a foolish belief! Deep lines of worry marked our foreheads, just as they had when we were freshmen. If we should fail! Failure at this time would be fatal to our career as "graduating seniors." Study! Study! Nothing could separate us from our books. February, the birthmonth of two of America's greatest men, was nearly our undoing. They were over! A sigh of relief was heard everywhere. Perhaps-maybe-they would be our last. The results! Hurray! The studying had helped, for we passed. Such joy! Once again our minds were free to be occupied with other matters.

Interesting things, first of one sort and then another overtook us. All the glory of "Seniorhood" was upon us. We never knew half of the pleasures of life until we became Seniors. We looked forward to Commencement with joy. We peered through all the fashion plates and finally decided on our "outfit." First with impatient and then sorry longings, we arrived at the "grand night." As we solemnly march up the aisle, thoughts of the future,-the dim misty future fill our minds. What would we, the glorious class of '28, be doing the following year? When we sat upon the stage and heard the glorious addresses, we were sorry that June finally came. Never would we be able to enter "Dear Old Withrow" as students free and rollicking, but must enter as alumni.

PROPHECY

PROPHECY

This year we are able to present the prophecy in a novel way. Through the aid of the future-vision radio we offer exclusive pictures of the class reunion in 1958. Here are all your friends—tag them, or better still, let them autograph their own future physiognomies.

Here they come, full of anticipation—and hunger.

A program in the assembly—short and snappy—has to be or they'd go to sleep.

Later—they dance to the soothing strains and reverberating crashes of this sizzling orchestra.

They eat—and how!

"The song is ended, but the melody lingers on."

WITHROW CLASS SONG '28

COMMENCEMENT

Dusky twilight.
Friendly shadows and happy thoughts.
Radiance
Of a flickering, tapering candle,
Embracing
A splendid rose
In a slender vase.

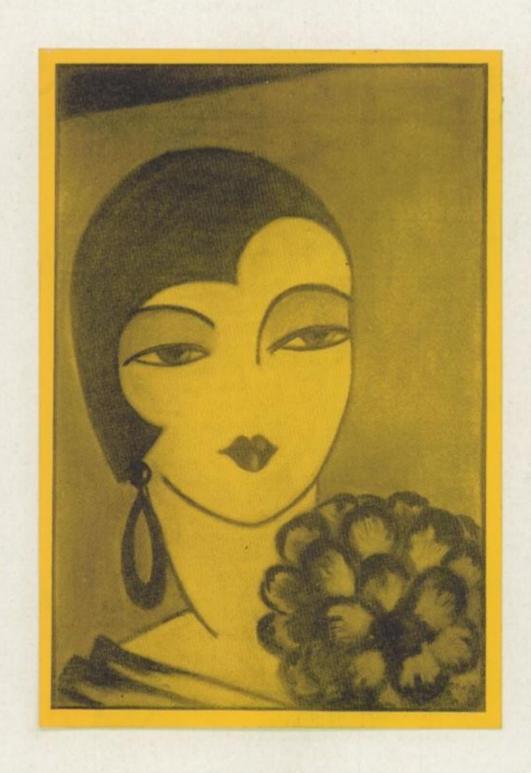

Dreams—
Flitting in and out,
Like the gentle flaring
Of that candle,
Softly filtering
Through semi-consciousness.

Dreams—
One dream . . .
Realized and achieved,
Centered in the heart-flame
Of a splendid rose;
A rose
Perfectly poised and Richly glowing
Above the graceful candle,
Its warm red
Melting in the dusk.

O, who would strive
For the soft gleam of candle,
Could ye have the heart of a rose?
O, who would reach
For a light that fluttered,
Could he treasure
A steady flame?
One may love and live
On to eternity
With the image of a rose,
A candle may only create
Lovely shadows,
Though its soft light
Wavers heavenward.

Strive on!
Carry onward!
Protect your tiny flame
As it struggles to shine in the dark,
But always see in its blurring rays,
Just ahead in the shadows,
Proud and erect on its steady stem,
Your treasured Rose of Success!

E are the juniors, and what is more, we are going to be seniors! How close we are to the goal that we set out to attain three long years ago! It hardly seems possible that one thousand and twelve days have clapsed since we walked over the so-called bridge of sighs, for the first time, with trembling knees, and faces that put to shame the innocent countenances of Botticelli's angels.

Well,—"live and learn," as the saying is,—and we surely did do that. By the end of the third month we had firmly planted in our minds the fact that room 313 was not adjacent to room 314, and that high school life wasn't all that story books made it out to be. Three more months had passed before we discovered the important part that exams and red ink played in our lives. After that, life seemed to roll smoothly along, and by the third week in June, everyone of us was ready to deem himself worthy of a good, long vacation.

Since "freshies" eventually become sophomores, we followed the usual custom and returned in September as sophisticated sophomores.

Those "freshies!" How utterly stupid and childish they were! Those seniors! Why, they didn't appreciate us! As a matter of fact, we alone appreciated ourselves.

Nevertheless, we were willing to work, and after the usual "adjustment" delay, we started out to conquer all that beset out pathway. We even took an active interest in athletics, furnishing several valuable members for the various teams.

Again the months, generously sprinkled with nightwork, tests, and fun, sped by; and again, June with all its joy and sunshine confronted us.

Now, after a year of honest work we have become full-fledged juniors; juniors that Withrow might well be proud of. Was not a large number of our class on the football team? Did not that same team help to secure the Cornell Cup for "Old Withrow?"

The girls, too, have won second place in hockey, not mentioning the laurels received in basket-ball and baseball. Indeed, this has been quite a successful year for us juniors. In athletics alone? No, in studies as well. Many a night did we carry on battle with lengthy propositions and formulas. Many a night did the laws of Physics and the cloquence of Cicero, in particular, bless us with a headache! Think of the countless days spent on English, History, French and Spanish,—of the long hours the household arts girls spent in making dainty delicacies that they themselves were compelled to eat! And why did the stenography classes continually turn good English words into unreadable hieroglyphics?

Of course, there was some more red ink, but as a whole we did our utmost throughout the year.

Could not our high school life be likened to that of a tree? The first year the little shoot is so young, so tender, so—so green. But much more progress is made the second year, and after that,—how it grows! How it sends out its roots to gather from the life-giving springs of knowledge and spreads out its branches to the higher better things of life!

Thus we will go through our senior year, and we hope, through our entire life,—forever striving towards the bright sun of our ideals and working with undaunted spirits towards the goal of our ambitions.

SOPHOMORES

E, not Lindy and the Spirit of St. Louis, but the sophomores of Withrow have a great deal to tell concerning our achievements in the past year. After a most enjoyable vacation we once again crossed the bridge, not as we did the year before when we were mere "freshies," but as a real, full-fledged sophomores, even if some of us do not yet know how to calculate the cost of lunch.

This year many of us fought with Caesar in the Gallic Wars. We subdued so many foreign tribes that we feel like World War veterans. Geometry has also furnished many of us with brain food.

We are well represented in the various musical organizations of the school, such as the Boys Glee Club, Girls Glee Club, and the Junior Orchestra.

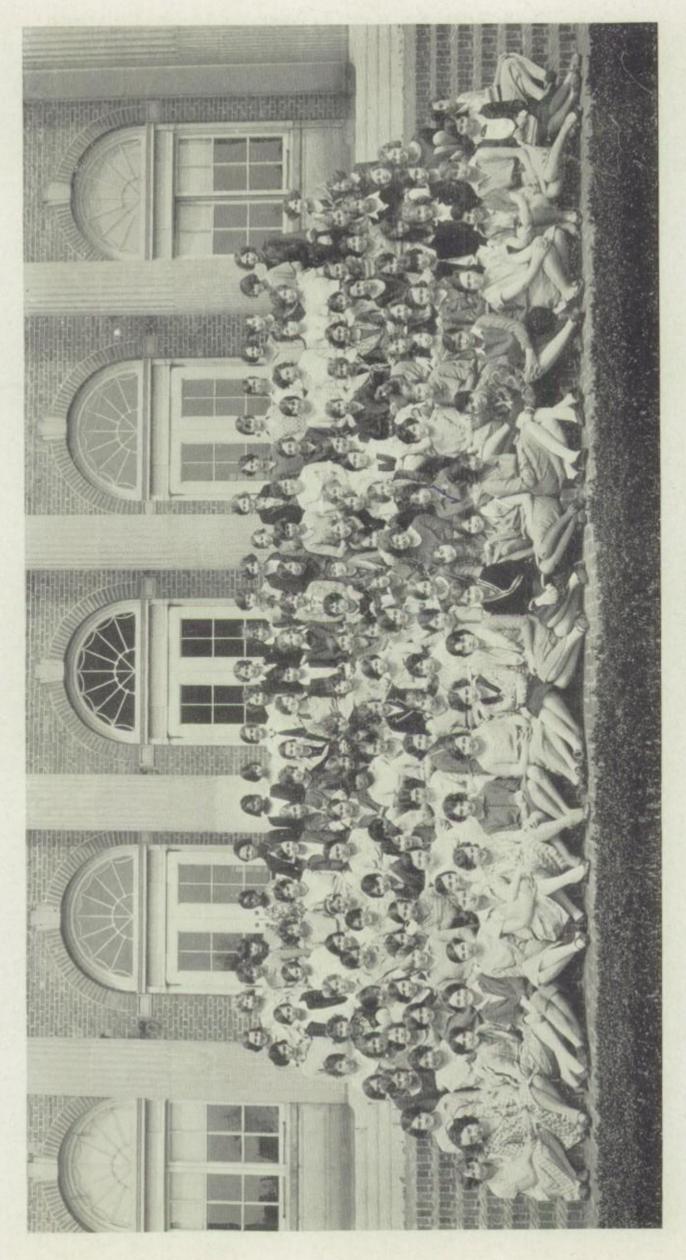

We now try to look into the future, imagining ourselves in the A or B grades, participating in grander social activities than those the past and present juniors and seniors have enjoyed.

Roger Fosdick, '30

AGER, pushing, awkward, with an air of braggadocio covering wildly beating hearts, we entered Withrow last fall, entering also a new and glorious adventure. We tried so hard to appear indifferent and experienced, but our grand air soon broke down before the lofty and withering scorn of those lords of the universe, the seniors. (The withering scorn was re-enforced by shoe-blacking whenever the grand air became too marked.)

The first few days were rather difficult. All was one jumbled mass of new faces, new ideas, new systems, and new teachers; but gradually we became accustomed to this new atmosphere, and soon felt quite at home.

Then came the football season, in which we were educated in the intricacies of the game and astonished by the hair-raising acrobatics of cheer leaders.

Christmas followed, a joyous holiday, marred only by the shadow of coming exams.

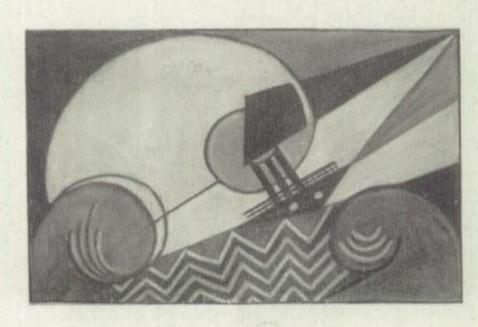

And then—the exams themselves! There were many wild starts of fear over some forgotten formula; hours of agony over Latin verbs; but, like the gallant St. George, we rode forth to battle and overcame the fire-spitting dragon who barred our passage.

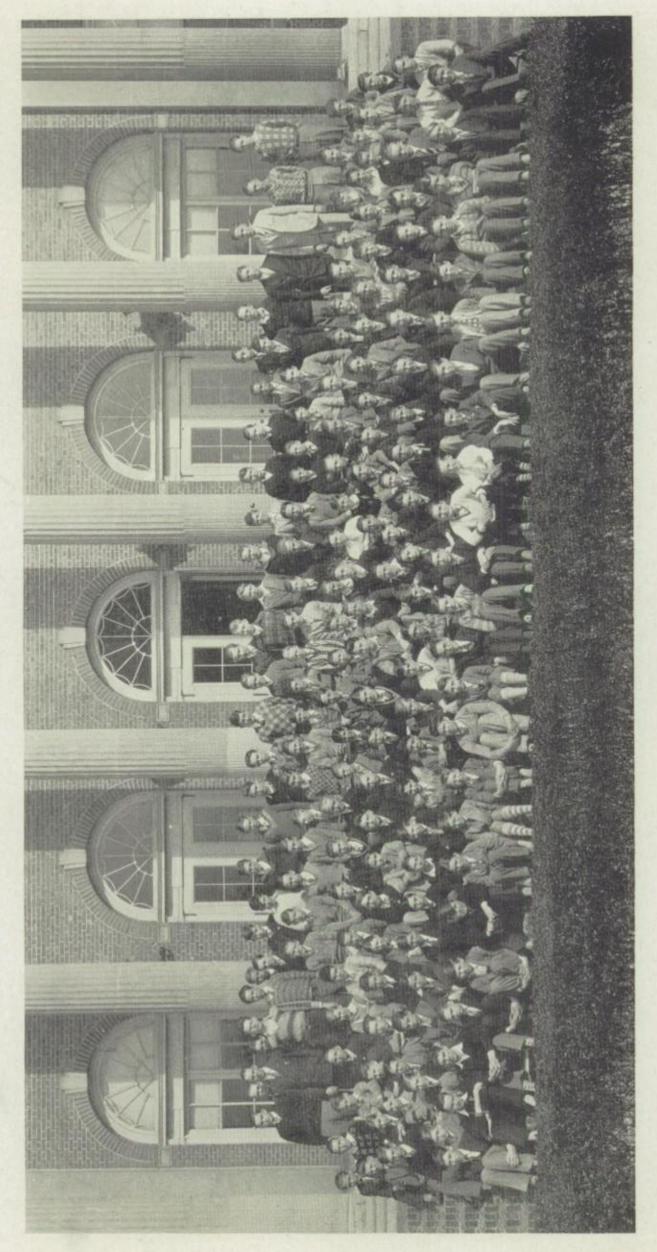

After the exams had passed, we settled down again to our regular school work, weekly clubs and various sports.

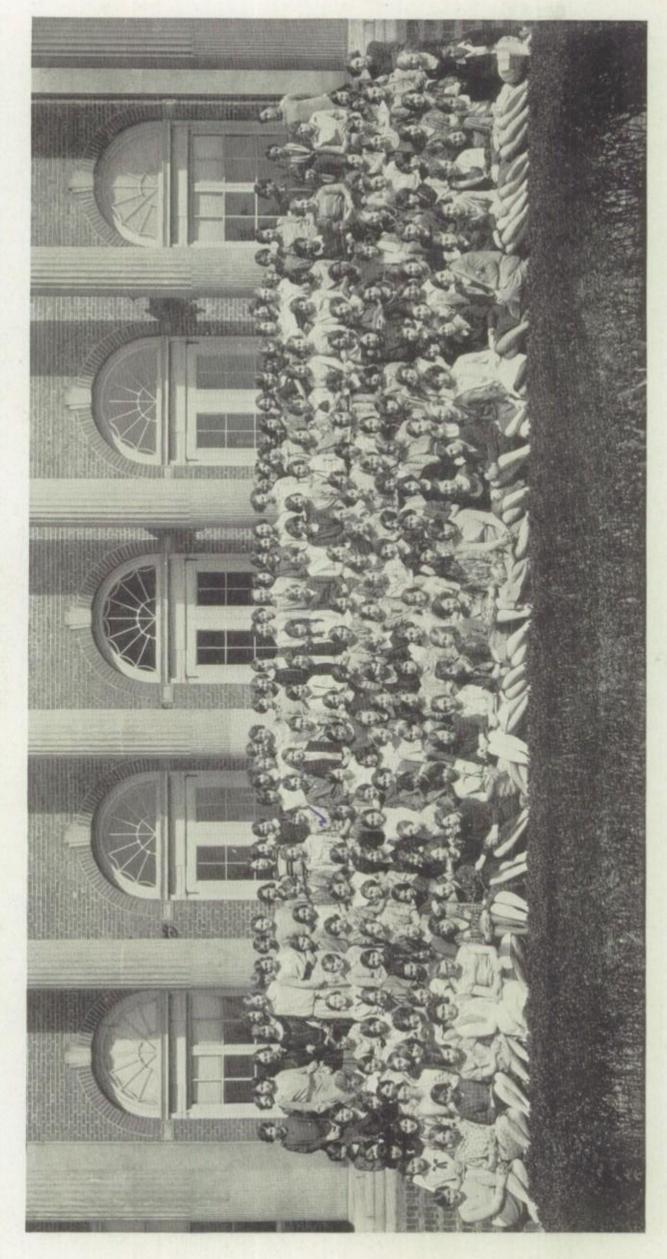

* * * * * * * *

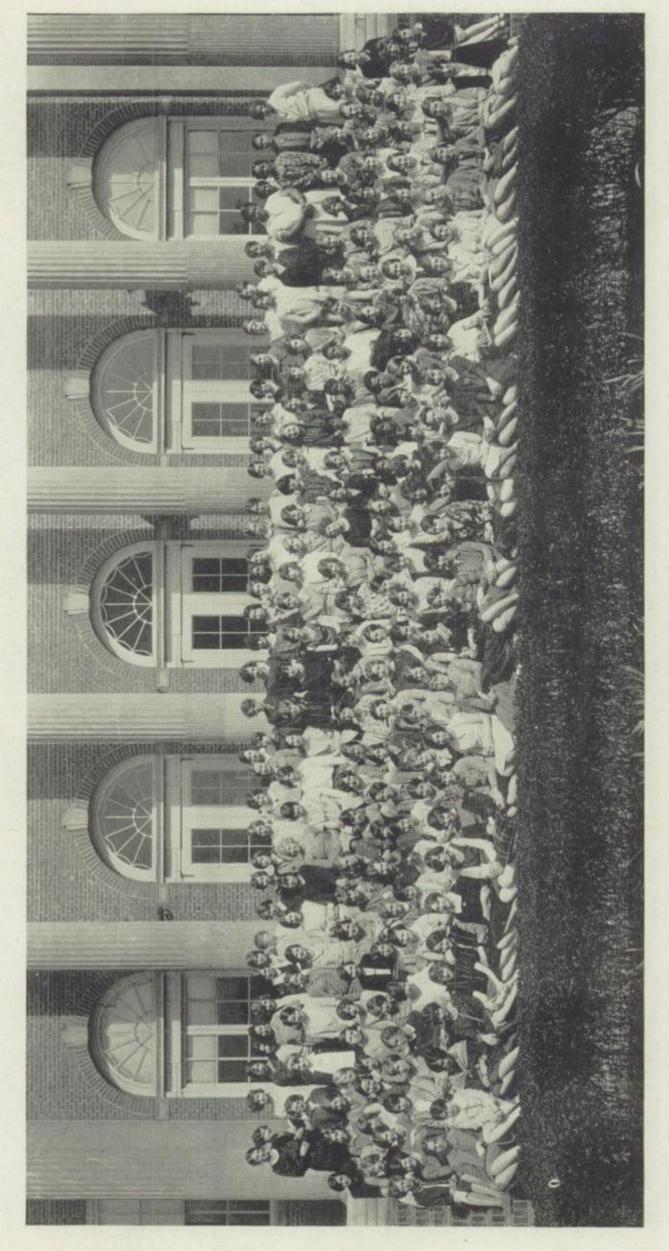

So, the year has been finished. We feel proud and triumphant for we have "fought the good fight" and have overcome these fiercy-eyed, snorting monsters which stood in our way. Of course, we have many dangers before us. We shall be haunted by the ghosts of Caesar and shall fight all the battles of history over again; but we are confident and know that we can overcome these obstacles, for were not dragons just made for brave knights to slay?

SEVENTH GRADE

ADVANTAGES AT WITHROW

Since we began school this year as the first group of seventh graders to enter Withrow High, we are finding every day how fortunate we are to carry on our education with the advantage of these additional two years in this big and wonderful school. Of course we were made very happy when told that we were to enter Withrow as Junior High pupils. On the other hand we felt rather insignificant when we actually found ourselves a real though small part of the school.

The freshie, they say, has always come into the institution a little fearfully and timidly. Well, think what our feelings must have been who still have two years to go before we are freshies. At any rate it did not take long for us to begin to feel our importance as a part of this great school, and to be right at home in its various departments of study and play.

We appreciate how fortunate we are to be in a school as large and perfect and complete as ours, and we are doing our level best to adapt ourselves to this new and strange plan, for we are having advantages such as no seventh graders ever had before. The course of study is more complete and the field of subjects a little wider than is usual in most grade schools.

We have been given the use of gymnasiums and swimming pools, thereby advancing our interest in, and knowledge of, athletics by two full years which should be a distinct aid in building up future teams that are to represent this school on the gridiron, on the diamons, and on the basket-ball floor.

As a final thought may we say that you upper classmen must remember that your behaviour and actions and the interest you display with reference to your studies, your games, and your social affairs will be bound to serve as a pattern to us in trying to adapt ourselves to high school life. We are learning how to act and conduct ourselves as high school students two full years before we reach that age, which surely is an advantage for us.

Bob White

LIFE AT WITHROW

Oh! How pleased we seventh graders are with Withrow.

The first day of school we came, thrilled through and through. Behold! Before us stood the wonderful Withrow beckoning us on and promising us its many activities and good times.

Football! Basket-ball! and Swimming! Yes, we saw ourselves marvelous football stars, basket-ball fans, and even second Gertrude Ederles. Who wouldn't be thrilled with such things in his mind? Why even the "freshies" are, only they won't say so.

Withrow's swimming pool held us spell bound. The water looked so cool and refreshing, that we wanted to take a dip the first time we saw it.

Withrow played her first football game of 1927 on September 30. It was for most of the seventh graders the first football game they had seen. We certainly were excited, and how thrilled we were when Withrow won!

The glorious day, which we will remember for years to come was when our Tigers played the Big Reds.

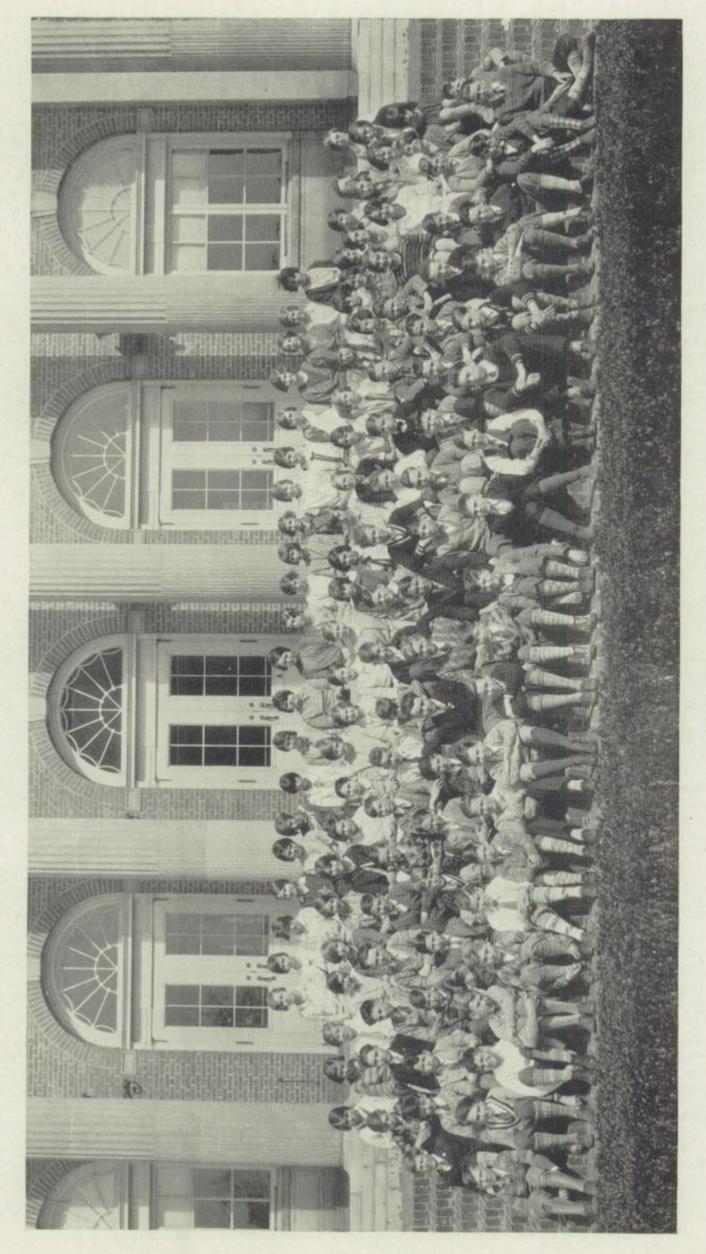

Oh! What a wonderful game! We were mighty proud of our Tigers when they came on the field. But when they left—well—you can easily imagine how we felt!

All the seventh graders are pleased and proud to say that they go to Withrow, as Withrow is a noted and beautiful high school. But there is one thing we do not like so well, and that is—exams. It seems that no one likes them, and so it doesn't make much difference whether we do or not.

In spite of exams we think Withrow is the finest school there is.

"We seventh graders" root for Withrow at every opportunity and think that the upper classmen should be glad they have such patriotic Withrowites going to their school.

Anita Hinnen

THRU" THE YEAR AT WITHROW

"Whether it be in the cold and dreary winter, in the blithesome spring time, or in the sere and fading autumn, at all times our school is beautiful—a reflection, we trust, of its inner life."—E. D. Lyon.

Around Withrow's beauty lie our dearest memories, held fast in each tendril of the ivy and reflected in each tree and flower, growing dearer with the advent of each new season. Just let your fancy recall the distant autumn and wander once again in the land of dreams.

As we wind down the drive, we see nestled in the bend, the woodsy little ravine. Each leaf takes on a different shade of gold or brown, and here and there we catch a glimpse of the silver of the beech bark. On the other side are the willows which seem to have a wonderful lightness and cheerfulness of expression despite their weeping habit.

As we follow the drive around to the Gym, we see a great bed of radiant zinnias and nasturtiums and hiding behind the high brick wall, lies the hardy garden. Such a riot of bright fall flowers! The marigold! The larkspur! And there, above the rocky garden, sheltered by the branches of the trees, stands our bird hotel. Down toward the fields stretches a long line of lombardies, their yellow leaves dancing merrily with every breath of air.

Let us go back along the other side of the school. Along the bottom of the bank there is a cattail or two, warning us to watch our step, but the ramblers, the asters, and the goldenrod keep our eyes high above the ground.

Suddenly we find ourselves at the edge of the wild flower garden. Dry leaves rustle in the long grass, a gentle breeze caresses the brightly colored trees. All the flowers that had bloomed so gaily in the spring are gone and only a spray of white asters gleam like stars at the foot of a tree. Scarlet and brown leaves have drifted in colorful heaps along the fence. Birds chirp drowsily and insects sing shrilly in the high grass. The golden glow of Indian summer pervades the air.

As the sky fades to winter's leaden hue, our landscape changes from red and brown to softly falling white, and our old Withrow presents quite a different view. The beech no longer hides his silver cloak, but proudly weaves his dainty lacy patterns on the sky. The willow remind us of some ancient hermit, its branches doubly drooping with their weight of snow.

Back in the hardy garden we hear a lot of chatter. It's just seven little winter birds after their mid-day meal. A cardinal is trying to scold a titmouse and a chickadee at their diet of seeds, and while the others fight, an unassuming little goldfinch creeps in and seizes her share. A chipping sparrow hops merrily about, picking up any bit the others may have dropped. A pair of juncos are holding counsel as to how to best get theirs.

A great change has come over the wild flower garden. The great trees creak and groan, lamenting the death of the dainty sprites who had graced their feet and upon whom they had looked with almost paternal love.

Along the entrances to the buildings, the spruce and pines become like silver fountains or a mass of tangled swansdown or a mighty coral from an ocean bed. Every branch and needle seems to be delicately sculptured and the beauty of these dazzling monuments far surpasses the work of human artists.

Then slowly through the white come hints of green. Small brown buds begin to burst and show the treasures they've been hiding. Our willows and our beech have a faint halo of pastel shades of green, so faint it seems as if we only imagine it. Yet as we look into the fleecy sky we know it must be true; azure eyed, golden haired, laughing spring will soon be here. The grass spreads out like velvet to make a carpet for her feet. The magnolia and the cherry trees throw blossoms in her path. The daffodils beckon to the birds to come and crink again 'neath the tinkling of the fountain.

In the hardy garden, pink tulips stand sentinel over beds of purple iris and the sparkling waters give life to a host of golden buttercups. The stately poplars beckon onward to the orchard where the blue sky frames a billowing sea of blossoms of the fruit trees and a blue bird sings a love call to his mate.

Where so short a time ago the great trees mourned their little friends, they now renew their vows of love by offering their peaceful shade. There are hosts of blue and purple violets in the grass. The white and yellow ones peek shyly from beneath green leaves. The masses of lavendar phlox are dotted here and there with the radiant sunshine of the celandine poppy. The trilliums, the anemone, the bloodroot, the hepatica lift their dainty white heads to catch glimpses of the feathered minstrels overhead. The leaves of the wild ginger jealously guard their red-brown blossoms. The red buds form a radiant canopy for this profusion of blossoms. Soon the robins, the indigo buting, the flaming tanagers, the tiny ruby-throated humming bird with his song of golden notes, will bring their gifts of bright-hued coats and melodious music. Where can one find greater beauty than this—and this belongs to Withrow.

Now as our landscapes slowly deepens to the warmer richer hues of summer, we cast backward a regretful eye, for summer means for us—goodbye.

THE ANNUAL

POLLOWING the trend of custom, the class of '28 has, at the end of at riumphant four-year period, brought to you this Annual, which, it is hoped, will be of far reaching interest to the student body of Withrow High School. While this book is not actually written and edited by the entire class, it is in reality a product of the graduating class.

Although it is impossible to literally individualize each member of a student body so large as ours in so small a volume, the editors and the staff feel that they have not slighted a single student, whether he may be senior, junior, sophomore, or freshman, or even a member of our junior high school. But even seniors and editors are not infallible; and to those who are very critical, let it be said that if you search diligently you may be able to find mistakes in this volume of ours. We have striven toward perfection, and we are satisfied that we have attained the highest degree of perfection possible to those of our rank and station.

We have endeavored herein to recognize every activity current in our school and to give due credit to each. Music, art, athletics,—nothing has been disregarded and we hope we have not stressed one at the expense of another.

Only one thing has made it possible to publish such a book as this; that is the splendid cooperation which we have received from the student body at large. We are highly appreciative of this and hope you recognize the fact. And now may the whole staff and senior class say as a final word, "We thank you!"

TOWER NEWS

OWER NEWS is not only the voice of the school—it is Withrow. It reflects alike the pep of a big game and the dread just before exam time; the beauty of the school campus under a blanket of snow, and the loyalty with which a team is supported. In other words, Tower News is the embodiment of that elusive thing called the "Withrow Spirit."

Since its infancy when there were only four issues a year, through its adolescence when the number of issues increased to ten or twelve yearly, until now, with its weekly edition, Tower News has been the only real newspaper published by a Cincinnati high school. As a newspaper it has published original poems and essays by the students, as well as current news. This past year more than any other, non-staff-members have contributed quite a bit to the paper.

A peppy and enthusiastic staff under Miss Flora Stochr as faculty adviser, has enjoyed thoroughly putting its pep and enthusiasm on paper and watching it be transformed into the proof that is sent back from the print shop. The staff sincerely hopes that the student body and the faculty have received as much pleasure from Tower News as the actual writers for the paper have received.

THE LIBRARY

WHAT three rooms in Withrow are best known and most fondly remembered? After adequate deliberation, after considering the various qualifications possessed by the many rooms in our school, we conclude that the Auditorium, the Lunch Room and the Library are the logical choices for the honor.

Throughout all four years of high-school life the events which center around these places become outstanding in the record of our experiences. Each gives to us a different thing; the Auditorium, diversions for our mind and an appeal to our human sympathies; the Lunch Room, a tasty concession to our healthy young appetites, and the pleasure of passing the time of day with our friends; and the library—

The library gives us that quiet atmosphere and mental stimulus which all of us long for, even though we do not recognize the longing. Whatever we lose of material things, the influence of the hours spent here in silent communion with the fine men and women of fact and fiction must be evident through all our later life.

Merely to stand in one of the alcoves and regard the boys and girls seated at the tables is a pleasant experience. To see them at any time is good, but when we watch them here we may sometimes read indirectly what they are reading, set forth clearly in their faces. If the book is humorous, or sad, or absorbing, or difficult, they translate it for us into the elemental language of facial expression. One or another may be so intent that we can only watch, and wonder what stirring adventures he is engaged in, what roads he is traversing, or what wonderful secrets he may be probing.

It would be rather difficult to write a just appreciation of our library. Perhaps this is because few of us fully appreciate it. We use it, but we do not realize just how important that use is to our education. This applies not only to our regular school work—to which the library is practically indispensable—but to the general education which goes so far toward rounding out the character of a modern man or woman. A bell or two spent browsing about the shelves in this room (preferably with notebook and pencil) is a sound investment for any of us. As we come across a beautiful passage or an intriguing paragraph in one of these volumes, we can jot down the title and, strange as it may seem, we one day discover that we have completed a 'date book'—a book filled with the names of friends who stand always ready and willing to cheer us, amuse us, and help us while away otherwise dreary hours.

Some of us will not be patrons of this library again. But we shall thank it always for its help, for its guidance, and for the many invaluable lessons it has given us in the ancient usage of courtesy between books and men.

THE BANK

A VERY convenient department at Withrow is the School Savings Bank. Here is a place to save your spare change for many things you would like to have. This department is open from eight to eight twenty-five every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday morning. Any small amount will start an account, but four per cent interest will begin when the total deposits have reached one dollar. Interest is compounded semi-annually. The bank books are kept by the school or by the student if desired.

The present plan of our bank is more expansive than ever before. Each home-room has a representative for the bank to attend to the deposits in their rooms. Representatives from the bank visit rooms every week to see that everything is correctly attended to. There is also a Central Banking office.

The students cooperate with a school spirit, having a total number of 400 depositors and the amount of deposits exceeding $5,000. Not only the students but the teachers cooperate with the bank.

The Withrow Bank still has much room in which to grow in comparison with some other high schools, but thus far there has been a very satisfactory increase in the number of depositors since the opening, and this year's record greatly exceeds that of last year.

CAFETERIA

ERE they are! This is the most important branch of the school. The faculty isn't in it compared with these. We can imagine a life without education, but could you imagine one without food? The women, under the supervision of Miss Townley, do all of the cooking and preparing of the food. The girls from school merely put out the salads, pies, puddings, custards, ice cream, milk, sandwiches, rolls, and butter. That is all, and they get paid for it. This extravagance of the School Board! The girls that don't carry food, are cashiers-but they do register, and how! The boys are the motive power behind those carts of trays seen in the lunchroom, not only that but they also furnish that beep-beep horn to warn you of its approach.

Again I say, "What would we do without them?"

THE ART LEAGUE

HREE years ago a group of art enthusiasts, at Withrow, banded together at Mr. Lyon's advocacy and formed the Art League. This organization, with the laudable purpose of furthering an interest in the fine arts, congenially includes both teachers and students, and has done much to adorn and beautify our stately walls.

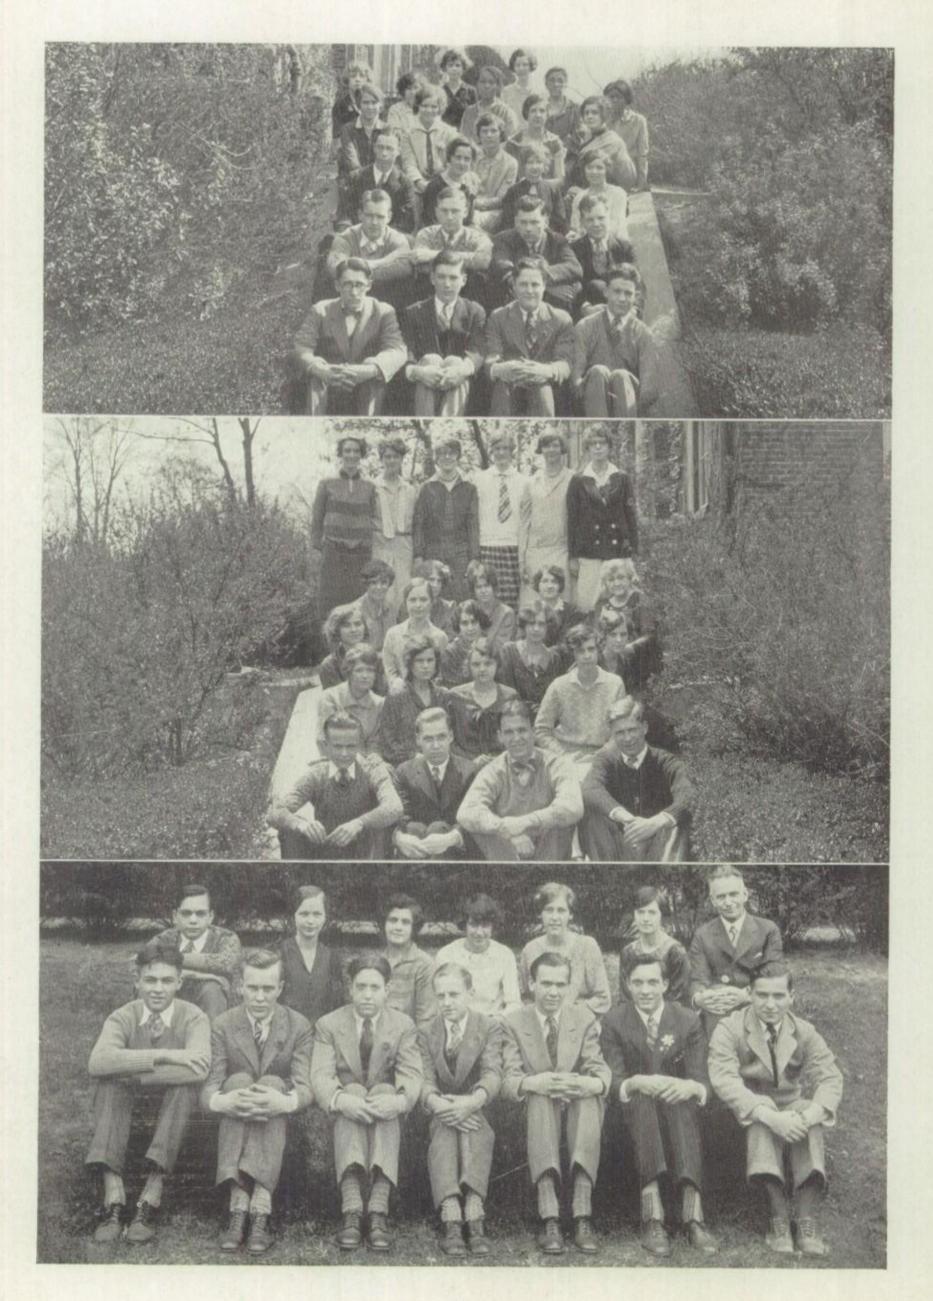

Particularly has the work of Cincinnati artists been favored, and with just cause. The several examples of their work, which have become a very real part of our decorations, have called forth much favorable comment, not only from our own community, but visitors have also remarked on this worthy appreciation of native talent.

"Late Afternoon," the beautiful landscape which adorns our page, was painted by Wilbur Adam. Its restful beauty again exhibits the careful discrimination of the Art League, which resulted in the purchase of the original canvas.

At present there hangs in Mr. Lyon's office a fine painting which is the work of William Kennedy, Withrow graduate, class of '21. We are truly proud of this not only because it is a concrete example of definite purpose fulfilled, but also because it was here at his Alma Mater that Mr. Kennedy began, in our art course, the career which developed his artistic talent. The Art League is, therefore, considering his work for a permanent place in the Withrow collection.

CLUBS

AENEADAE

HE Aeneadae Latin Club of 1927-28 was organized in October by the Students of Miss Dann's Virgil Class, under her supervision. The club meets on the first Friday in every month during the regular recitation period. At these meetings, after the business meeting has been concluded, a program is presented. The program consists of well-prepared talks that are instructive as well as entertaining. These talks concern subjects in which the club is interested and which cannot be discussed in the regular recitation because of the lack of time. After these talks, the remainder of the time is spent in playing Latin games.

Each member has profited by these meetings, receiving both pleasure and knowledge from them.

VIRGILIANI

HE Virgiliani Latin Club of 1927-28 was organized early in the school year in accordance with a precedent formed by earlier classes. The members of the club are those students who are taking the fourth year Latin course instructed by Miss Donnelly. At the monthly meetings the members answer roll call with a verse from Virgil. At each meeting reports are given which are not only interesting but also full of information regarding Roman Life, habits, and customs. These help to make clear the conditions existing at the time the classics which are read during the year are written. Frequently Latin songs are sung and games are played which prove to the members that Latin isn't so dead after all.

GERMAN

War. As a result the members of the classes during the second year felt the need of a German club. The membership of the club is limited to the senior and unior class. Meetings, held once a month, are conducted in German and according to German parliamentary rules. The club is named the SCHILLER CLUB after Germany's great poet.

We find the meetings very enjoyable and beneficial in giving us a better understanding of the German language and customs. It may be interesting also to know that at present we are corresponding with German students abroad. Thus we feel we are doing our bit toward strengthening the ties of friendship between that country and ours. For this reason, we hope that our successors will carry on the club and derive as much pleasure and benefit from it as we have.

EUCLIDEAN

HE Euclidean Mathematics Club meets on the last Friday in each month during the regular fourth period recitation. Its membership is restricted to students taking college algebra or trigonometry. During the meetings we forget the intricacy of the classroom with its powers, roots, tables, and what-nots, and turn to the less technical and lighter phases of mathematics.

The aim of the club is to give, in an interesting and attractive manner, the background, both historical and practical, upon which our mathematics and its value depends. Its programs are arranged with this aim in view. During the year, the lives and achievements of the world's greatest mathematicians, both past and present, are reviewed by the club. The evolution of our modern mathematics from ancient times, forms another interesting part of the programs.

PYTHAGOREAN

E, the students of college algebra and trigonometry, following the custom of our school, have again organized the Pythagorean Mathematics Club. Our meetings are held the last Friday of every month during the regular class period. At this time we forget the technicalities of algebra and trigonometry and devote ourselves to discussions and talks dealing with the fascinating and intriguing origin and influence of higher mathematics.

In our programs we touch on a wide range of subjects, from the descriptions and demonstrations of such devices as the Slide Rule and the Transit, to the amusing and puzzling mathematical wrinkles and brain twisters which are inevitably included in our programs. We learn about the lives of the ancients who were the originators of this particular science and we are also shown what part mathematics plays in other sciences and industries of today, such as astronomy and navigation.

RADIO

HE Radio Club has enjoyed an especially prosperous year. The work of the club started at the point of achievement where the club of the previous year left off. The transmitting and receiving equipment were redesigned and rebuilt under the direction of the Stations Committee directed by G. Hart and C. Rainey. Much data was thus presented for the instruction and benefit of the members. Special classes in instruction and code work were also conducted as an auxiliary of the club.

The club's equipment consists of a complete 40-meter transmitter and receiver, a broadcast and long wave receiver and other special equipment. The major equipment has been bought, donated, or built by members of the club. The club's transmitter has proved its efficiency as is evidenced by numerous identification cards from all over the United States. Several messages were handled through the station whose government assigned call is 8-ASY.

The membership is open to any member of the four classes who is genuinely interested in radio; no other qualification is necessary.

TAURUS

HE fifth bell astronomy class has organized a club in order to secure additional information concerning astronomy and to give variety to the class work. The programs consist of legends and unusual astronomical facts presented in an entertaining way. Each member of the chapter stands ready to take part in the programs or to work in any way called upon for the benefit of the club. We have a very interesting plan for the meetings including trips to the observatory and a picnic at the end of the year.

Every member as well as our faculty adviser enjoys the various activities of the club. Our meetings are held every two weeks during the sixth period, on Wednesday.

SCRIBBLERS

HE Scribbler Club is composed of a group of twenty girls from the junior and senior classes, elected because of their literary ability. At the club meetings essays, short stories, and plays are read, discussed, and written by the members. Every year it is the duty of this club to rearrange and publish the "Tower Book," a booklet explaining the various studies, departments, clubs, and matters of general interest at Withrow. In this way the club is a real asset to the freshmen and newcomers to the school.

AURIGA

HE Auriga Chapter of the Astronomy Club was organized in the second half of the year by the seventh period astronomy class under the direction of Miss Strate. Meetings were held on every other Thursday during the seventh period. At these meetings reports were made on various phases of astronomy which amplified the regular class work. The lives of the great astronomers and their contributions to the science, the legends of the various constellations and references to astronomy in literature furnished the subjects for these talks. Not only were there these interesting and helpful programs, but there was also a picnic at the end of the year which was heartily enjoyed.

TOWER Y

OWER Y, although not a school club for two years, has again fallen into line. The club is a branch of the Y. W. C. A., composed of girls in the four classes of Withrow. Its programs include work, fellowship, and recreation. The purpose of the club is best expressed by the code:

Gracious in manner
Impartial in judgment
Ready for service
Loyal to friends

Reaching toward the best
Earnest in purpose
Seeing the beautiful
Eager for knowledge
Reverent to God
Victorious over self

EUTERPEAN

HE Euterpean Music Club was formed this year under the supervision of Miss Cochnower the Harmony teacher. The purpose of the club is to further the appreciation of music. The club has enjoyed many interesting programs, which were devoted to the life and works of famous composers. The cooperation of the students has enabled the program committee to give many successful programs. The name of the club was taken from Euterpe, the Greek Muse of lyric song. The club has an enrollment of sixty pupils. All the pupils of the high school are invited to join. Although the club is new, it has been successful and we hope that it will be one of the outstanding clubs at Withrow.

KALIDASA

THE class of '23 conceived the idea of having an organization in which the various talents of the girls might be developed. Thus Kalidasa came into existence. The Senior girls of the succeeding years have carried on the original idea and the programs are representative of Art, Drama and Music. In place of the traditional Karnival, the girls presented a program this spring with the junior girls as their guests. This gave the girls of '29 an idea of the work which they will take up next year.

We Seniors believe that Kalidasa of '28 has been bigger, better, and busier than during the preceding years. We sincerely hope that the class of '29 will be as interested in the work as we have been.

FRENCH

HE French Club holds its meetings once a month, after school, at which time some very interesting programs are presented. These programs consist of talks, dialogues, and various other features, all of which are carried on in French. Word and number contests are also inserted at intervals in order to stimulate interest and challenge the students to study. All members are eligible to enter these contests.

The French Club, while being a social organization, places valuable information before the student and, at the same time, provides him with an opportunity to use the French he has learned in the class room.

CAMERA

CICK-CLICK! Do you want to snap one, too? We've been doing it for years! Come on and learn how to take some real pictures. No, we do not hold every meeting in 132. One unusually interesting meeting was a visit to the Photographic Department of the City Hospital. Sh--h! While there, we saw the breathing of the hearts of some of our members. They're still alive; ask them about it.

On February 3, having completed our exams, we celebrated with a party at the Webb Studio. Mr. Webb was a delightful host. Lights and shadows, refreshments, and Mr. Schweizer were the attractions.

A surprisingly unique field trip was that to the Fas-Foto studio, where we were royally entertained with movies, demonstrations, and "other things."

If you wanted a real treat, you should have been present at the priceless session with the "Peers of Photography" at the Camera Club of Cincinnati. Here we were turned loose in their studio and saw some excellent examples of real photography.

We have a dark room, the realm of the "Mystic Magic." Here any member may learn the act of developing and printing films. Just a brief exposure, a few drops of developer, and a little hypo, and—Behold! On perfectly plain films appear the dim outlines of familiar scenes and faces. Try it next year. PHILOLOGIA

PHILOLOGIA is acknowledged as the leading boys society at Withrow. It was organized in Madisonville High School in 1912 and was transferred to our school in 1919. Philologia is a society governed by strict parliamentary law and dedicated to the pursuit of knowledge through the study of various forms of oratory. A wonderful spirit of fellowship reigns among the members which gives them the advantage of benefiting by this wide fraternal association but added to this is the educational value of the prepared talks and debates and the skill acquired through the extemporaneous speeches.

In Philologia the boys are criticized, tried, and judged, and governed by fellow associates. Through the friendly cooperation of the members and under the most capable guidance of the new faculty adviser, Mr. C. R. Walker, the Philologians of '28 have succeeded in upholding the time-honored traditions of scholarship, truth, and justice.

SPANISH

HE fourth year Spanish Club, consisting of Miss Perkins' second period class, meets monthly during the recitation period. The purpose of this club is to improve and promote Spanish conversation. The meetings are conducted in Spanish by the student officers. As a special program follows the business session, every meeting is looked forward to with much pleasure.

At one meeting Benson Sherwood gave us first-hand impressions of South America. He illustrated his talk with pictures which were taken while in Buenos Aires, where he lived for several years. At several meetings Spanish plays were presented—"La Primera Disputa" by Lucile Puckett, Thomas McHugh, and Dorothy Steves—"Uno de Ellos Debe Casarse" by William Hoyer, Wilbert Kottenbrook, Jeanette Lang, and Edith Krumme. At other times papers pertaining to Spanish life and customs were read. A colorful "Spanish Tango" was danced by Ruth Ulric and Ruth Stoecklin, who were typical costumes of Spanish dancers. The programs are usually brought to a close with the singing of Spanish songs.

WITHROW

HE Withrow Club is one of the boys most popular organizations. It was organized three years ago and is sponsored by Mr. Hunt. Its growth has been rapid, and its activities have proved to be of great value in promoting school spirit. At football, baseball, and basket ball games, the members of the Withrow Club were always on hand, selling tickets and schedules, decorating the goal posts, and otherwise assisting in the stands. The Withrow Club has also made a gift of twelve flags to the school for use in our stadium.

The club meets every other week. Outside speakers and interesting programs have been presented each month. Discussions concerning the general welfare and appearance of the school, and plans and means to improve them, have been brought up in our business meetings.

It is the aim and purpose of the Withrow Club to represent as nearly as possible the true Withrow spirit.

LAW

THE Law Club is composed of commercial students who discuss phases o law which are not touched upon in class. Seniors who have studied law are invited to attend and take part in the programs. Trials have been held at some of the meetings this year. The first one was very comical because the members who participated in it knew very little about conducting the proceedings. The attorneys constantly sprang trick questions and surprises. The trials have been interesting as well as educational.

At another meeting the program committee, which had visited the Clearing House, gave a demonstration and explanation of it in operation.

DANCING CLUB

OME students find a medium of self-expression in the drama, others in music, in art, or in the dance. From this last group the Dancing Club is composed. For eight years this organization has been a prominent factor in creating an active interest in the Art of the Dance. The annual programs, in which most of the dances and costumes are the original creations of the members themselves, have kept the school well informed of the Club's activities. The large and enthusiastic audiences which have always attended those performances have amply testified to the deep and genuine interest with which outsiders in general regard a club of this sort.

At an annual tryout, about forty girls are chosen on their merits of natural grace, rhythm, and ability to interpret music. None are selected as permanent members unless they have already a sincere interest in the work of the club at previous trial meetings. Under Miss Taylor's able guidance these girls then strive to learn how emotional reactions to music may be transferred to natural, easy, and graceful motions of the body, rather than to the set movements prescribed by a series of definite ballet steps. Thus their dancing is singularly lacking in stiff artificiality and formality, and possesses instead, a graceful freedom of rhythm which is a pleasure to behold.

The Dancing Club has indeed had an enviable share in making Withrow a center of Art and Beauty. "On with the dance!"

THALIAN DRAMATIC

SINCE the beginning of time, we can trace the outward expression of the dramatic instinct, from the crude religious ceremonies of half savage people, through the period of the Shakespearean theatre, characterized by lavish splendor, down to the present advent of the popular Little Theatre movement. Thalian Dramatic Society was organized for the purpose of giving wholesome artistic expression to this same inborn desire to interpret life at its best. The high standards and democratic ideals of this organization were set forth in the production of "Clarence" this spring, as well as in the productions of former years.

With such a favorable background, who can predict the heights to which this organization may aspire in the years to come?

MUSIC

SPECIAL CHORUS

THE Special Chorus has the largest personnel of all the musical organizations at Withrow. When it was started, seven years ago, its members numbered forty. This membership has gradually increased until now there are more than 200 boys and girls who come faithfully every Wednesday morning at 7:55 to carefully study and practice chosen numbers. When these are sung they receive the highest praise from music critics of Cincinnati.

Because the music selected is so interesting and inspiring, the real joy of good music is opened to those who are members. This year at the Christmas program, "The Birthday of a King," by Neidlinger, and "The Christmas Lullaby," by our own Mr. Surdo, were sung exceedingly well.

This organization has attained a reputation equal to that of any high school choral club and we feel sure that this reputation will always remain.

Withrow High School is indeed fortunate in having as music director, Mr. Surdo, who has been recognized in the musical world both as a director and composer. The Cincinnati College of Music has conferred upon him the degree of Master of Music, which is only given to those of exceptional musical talent and genius. Through Mr. Surdo's efforts the standards of good music have been raised very high at Withrow and for his work among us we offer him our sincere gratitude and appreciation.

GIRLS SELECT CHORUS

HE Girls Select Chorus consisting of about thirty girls with picked voices, meets every Wednesday afternoon after the Girls Glee Club rehearsal. The Select Chorus adds that final artistic touch, that every musician enjoys, to the programs of the Annual Concerts. They especially study the finer points of shading and interpretation. To these girls Withrow over its gratitude because of their efforts to raise still higher Withrow's musical standards, so carefully cultivated in the past.

Withrow is indeed fortunate in having as its musical director, Mr. Surdo, who is a musician of recognized talent and genius. He has received the degree of Master of Music from the Cincinnati College of Music. To Mr. Surdo, who so successfully wields the baton and who is always striving for the best in music, Withrow offers its sincere appreciation for his efforts.

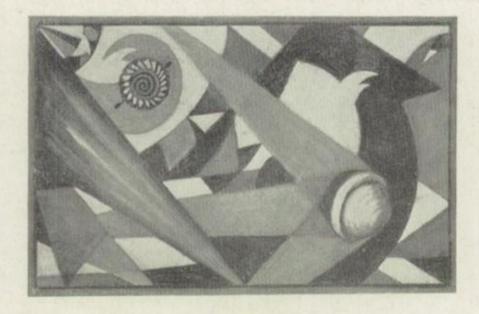

BOYS GLEE CLUB

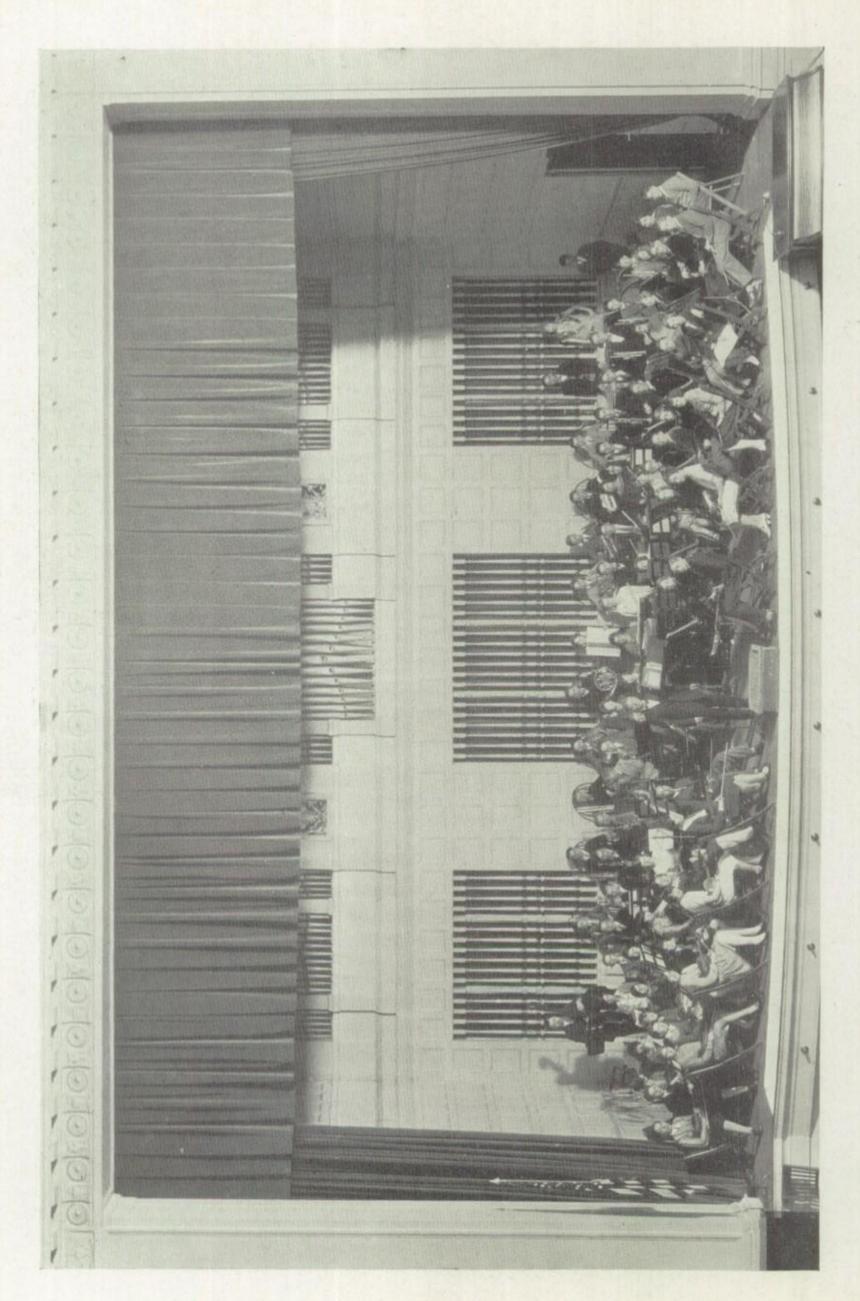

O the patrons of Withrow's Annual Concerts the Boys Glee Club exemplifies an ideal organization. Their numbers, whether serious or jovial, are awaited with anticipation by the audience. These sixty-five boys not only give enjoyment to others, but reap a great benefit musically by the weekly Tuesday afternoon rehearsals. Our music director has instilled in the boys a real love of good music which we hope will be a boon to Cincinnati's musical future. We hope to find many of these boys singing in the May Festival in the succeeding years.

GIRLS GLEE CLUB

HE Girls Glee Club is one of the most popular organizations at Withrow. About eighty girls meet every Wednesday afternoon in the music room and there devote an hour and a half to the study of the best choral works. The compositions chosen for them are from among the best in music literature and the results attained are very gratifying.

The Girls Glee Club is a very necessary part of Withrow's Christmas programs and its rendition of Christmas songs is always looked forward to by the school. "Silent Night," and Tschaikowsky's "Legend" are among the favorites. The work of the club at the Annual Concert must also be commended.

SENIOR ORCHESTRA

1 O the tunes of marches, waltzes, reveries, and symphonies, the Senior Orchestra has played its way through its most successful year. It has added to its popularity in Cincinnati and vicinity by performing for two conventions at the leading hotels of the city, by the Big Four Concert, and by our own Annual Concert in June.

Withrow is proud of this group of more than sixty players whose great love of music makes them willing to spend more than two hours every Monday and Thursday afternoons in practicing, together with the many other hours employed in working out a difficult passage or in putting on the finishing touches. This year the work of the Orchestra on Dvorak's "New World Symphony" deserves special mention because of the difficulties this number presents, not only in technique, but in interpretation and shading as well.

May Withrow's Senior Orchestra continue to grow in fame and excellence with the succeeding years!

JUNIOR ORCHESTRA

VERY picture has its background and the background of Withrow's orchestral music is the Junior Orchestra. We hear but little of this organization except at the Annual Concert, but its members work faithfully every Friday afternoon to pave the way for better things in the Senior Orchestra. These rehearsals are mainly to teach the student the routine of orchestral work, for no matter how good a musician one may be, he must learn to play very accurately in ensemble work so that a harmonious whole is produced. Toward this end the members of the Junior Orchestra strive.

The Junior Orchestra is an ambitious group, for the goal of every member is a place in the Senior Orchestra. Under Mr. Surdo's careful direction few are disappointed and as a result our orchestras grow better with each succeeding year.

The result of their faithful practice was displayed by them when they, combined with the Senior Orchestra, opened the program of the Ninth Annual Concert with the brilliant overture, "La Rosa des Noces," by Lavellee.

BAND

HIS year was a very successful one for the band. Under the capable guidance of Hawley Todd, a member of the graduating class, this organization not only cheered the teams to victory, but also furnished the school with interesting programs on several occasions. To the student body, the band and PEP are synonomous as the band is one of Withrow's peppiest organizations.

Hawley Todd will be remembered as an efficient leader, for it was through his faithful work that this year's band was a success. Credit is also due to Harry Ballman, drum major, for he not only "strutted" on parade but also helped to drill the boys for field work.

FOOTBALL

A T the first call for candidates on the opening day of school, about sixty men turned out to begin practicing for the 1927 football season. Coaches Walke and Duning, with only five experienced men, began whipping into shape one of the best teams that has ever represented Withrow. This team, having an unusually long schedule of nine games, won seven, lost one, and tied one.

The season opened with Elder High as the Tigers opponents on our own field. The first three periods were scoreless, with both teams displaying a good brand of football for the first game of the season. In the last quarter, however, Patton, star Withrow back, scored two touchdowns, the second on a fifty-yard run. Munson's drop-kick and pass to Patton were both good for two extra points. The Tigers showed much ability both on offense and defense and deserved a well earned 14 to 0 victory.

After a week's drill on the defects of the first game, Withrow met the Blue team from Hamilton. Although played on a wet field this game was probably the best the Tigers played through the whole season. Hamilton scored early in the first period on straight football, but the Tigers came back in the third quarter to tie the score on a pass, Munson to McGugin. This game, which was marked by Curry's defensive play and Munson's ability to handle the team was the only game which Hamilton did not win during the season.

The following Saturday the Tigers, full of confidence, journeyed to Dayton to play the strong Roosevelt High of that city. Withrow, because of this over-confidence, put up a wretched game and this with the fine running and passing attack of Roosevelt was the cause of the lopsided score.

Coach Walke, after sending his team through a hard week of practice in breaking up passes, pitted his eleven against Miami Military on the home field. Withrow showed a complete reversal of form and gave the Military boys a good 20 to 0 trouncing. Miami Military's weak points consisted in its failure to break up Munson's bullet passes and to stop the plunging Tiger backfield.

On October 28, Withrow took another up-state trip, this time to Xenia. Because of injuries to three of the regulars in the Roosevelt and Miami Military games, Coach Walke started the entire second team. Moreton of Xenia crossed the goal line late in the first period, but after the regulars had been inserted, Munson, although being a regular backfield man for two years, scored his first touchdown for Withrow. During the second half, Moreton crossed the goal line again, only to see Withrow score twice more to cinch a 19 to 13 victory. Of the second team, Peoples on the line and Wolfe and Cochran on the backfield, looked best, but Munson's pass work and the vigorous playing of Moreton for Xenia were the features of the game.

Woodward, with the possibility of defeating Withrow for the first time in nine years, met the Tigers a bit over-confident. The possibility was soon upset, when the Tigers line held the Bulldogs from any consistent ground gaining and ripped wide holes in the Bulldogs line, through which the Tiger backfield marched to score time after time. As the Tigers kept rolling up the score, Coach Walke began to substitute until everyone on the squad got into the game.

On November 10, Withrow met the Walnut Hills Eagles at the Withrow stadium. Walnut Hills was held scoreless but the Tigers, in taking things easy in preparation for the Hughes game, rolled up 57 points. "Cheese" Hand, the plunging Sophomore fullback, was the star of the game with four touchdowns to his credit.

On Friday, November 18, the climax of the season of 1928 was reached; the contest between Withrow and Hughes! Although it was a cloudy, wet day, enough followers of the two teams turned out to witness the game to more than fill the stadium and the temporary stands. Cheer after cheer was given for the teams as they came out on to the field. After each team had warmed up and Captain Curry and Nau had shaken hands, the teams lined up for the kick off. After several punts and line plays the first quarter ended with no score as both teams were testing out their opponents' strength. On the first play of the second quarter, Munson passed to Cummings for the first touchdown of the game. The Tigers began, soon afterward, another determined march down the field but were cut short by the gun at the half. Not long after the beginning of the third quarter, the Tigers worked the ball to the 5-yard line, where Hand hit center for Withrow's second touchdown. Hughes staged a comeback when Goldmeyer passed to Kauther, who ran thirty yards for a touchdown. Hughes threatened to score again but the Withrow line tightened up and stopped the rush. Withrow carried the ball deep into Hughes' territory near the end of the game and scored when Hand took it over. Hughes tried to score by hurling passes in all directions, but was stopped when Withrow intercepted one of these as the final gun went off. Withrow's backfield composed of Munson, Patton, Hand, and Cummings, working in perfect step behind Blinn, Osterfeld, Heaton, Booth, Curry, Moeller, Parker, and McGugin, on the line, was the main reason for Withrow's victory. When speaking of the features of the game, Goldmeyer of Hughes cannot be omitted for his work on defense and offense was wonderful.

In the last game of the season with Hartwell, Withrow cinched the Cornell Cup by virtue of a 31 to 0 victory. Captain Curry was called back to fullback on Hartwell's three yard line, from which he scored his first touchdown in four years of football. This was the last game that Curry, Blinn, Osterfeld, Cummings, Munson, Cochran, Gross, Miller, and Bachler will play for Withrow.

Bill Curry, Captain

Coach Walke

Captain Curry—all Cincinnati center for two years. Bill was light, aggressive, and a real leader. He set the pace for the team. We are surely sorry to lose him for he certainly will be a hard man to replace. Bill is going to college and we know he will make good.

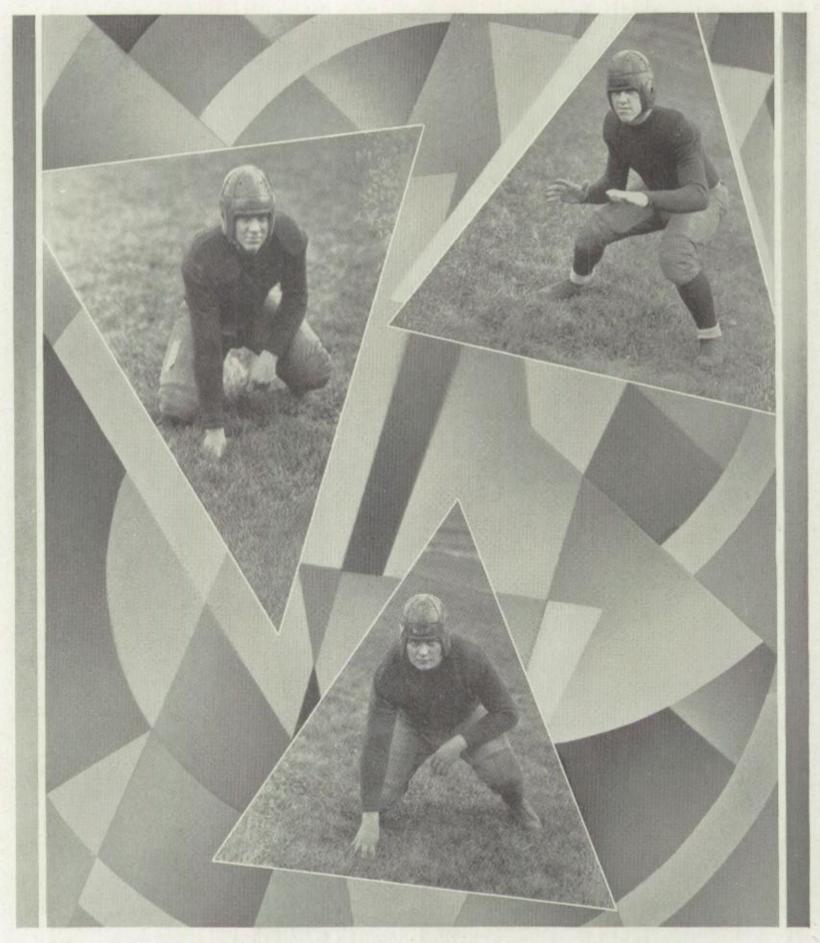

William Harrison, Manager

Mr. Peoples

Although Bill did not wear a uniform as did the rest of the squad, he was one of the prime factors in the team's success. He was none other than the Tigers' competent manager in a victorious season.

Ran Booth

George Osterfeld

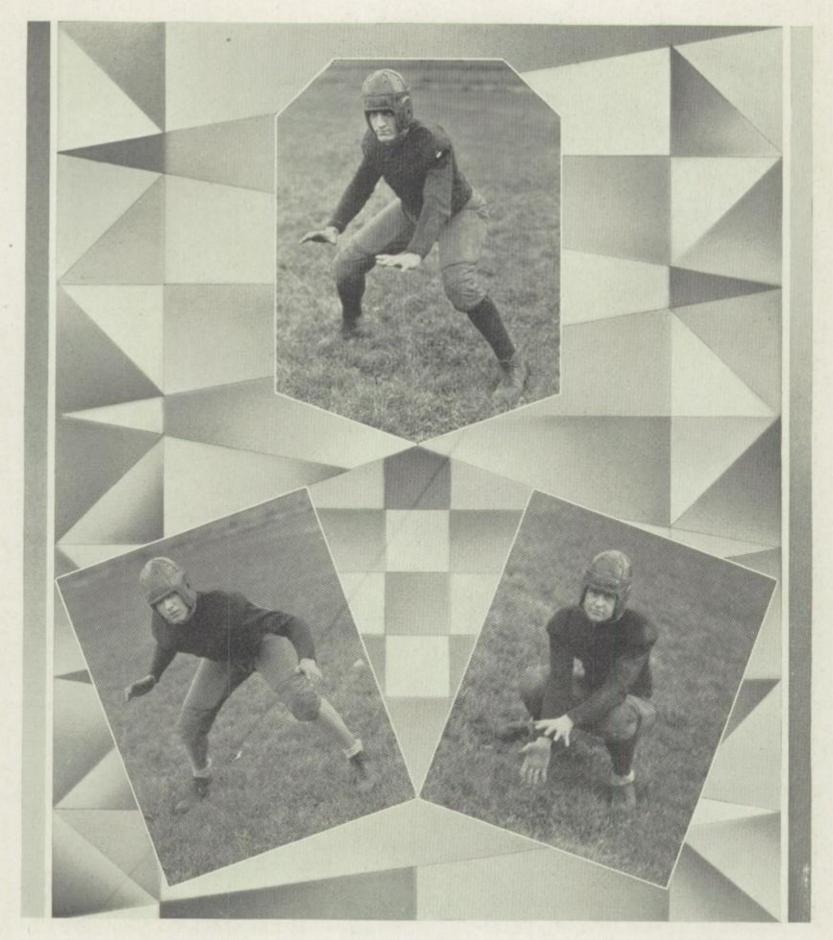

Ed Moeller

RAN BOOTH (All Cincinnati Guard): Ran was a great help to Withrow's line. Not many plays got past him. He was very clever—making openings for the backfield of his team.

ED MOELLER (All Cincinnati Guard): Eddie is little but mighty. He did not wait for plays to come to him to break them up, but went after them. Watch him next year.

GEORGE OSTERFELD (Full and Tackle): Bud was a handy man this year. He was sometimes used on the line and at other times in the backfield. When we were in danger, Bud was called out of the line to punt.

Fred Gross

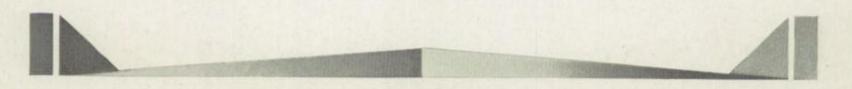

Jack Heaton

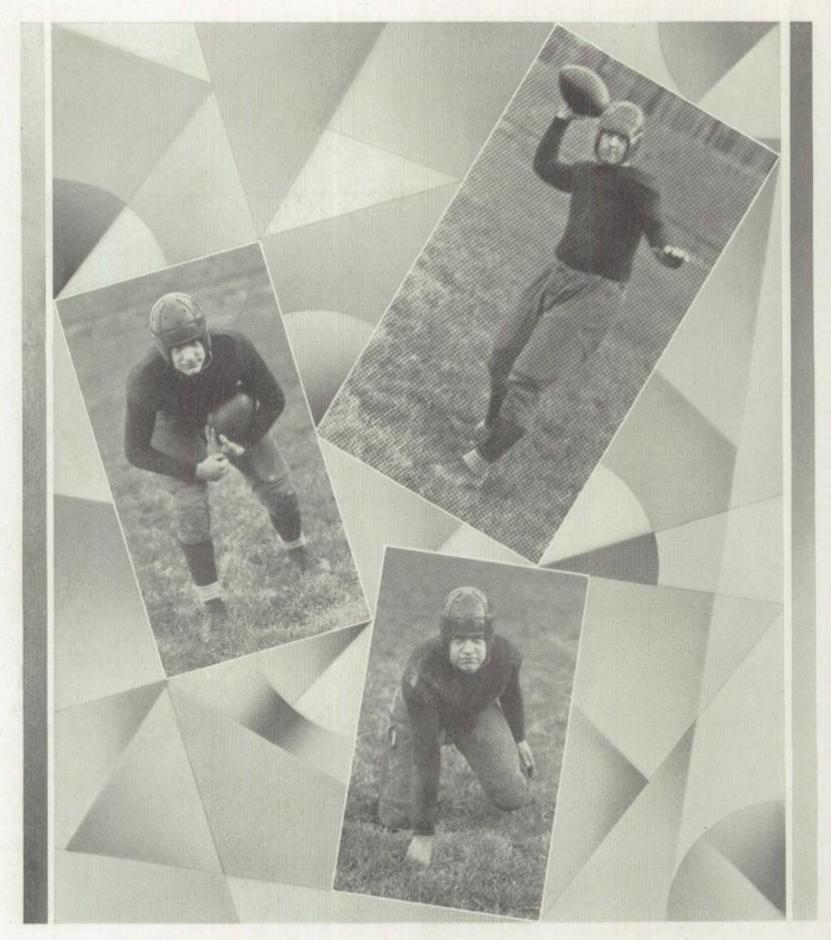

Fred Cochran

JACK HEATON (Tackle): Jack was a hard hitter and a star at his position. He broke his leg about mid-season but the old fight and determination put him in shape for the Hughes game.

FRED GROSS (End): Fred din not play regularly but he was ready at any time to go into the game. He gave all he had toward winning.

FRED COCHRAN (Quarter): Fritz was snappy and full of pep at quarter. When he came into a game to call signals every fellow knew he meant business. He was a good field general and his head pulled the team out of many tight places.

George Hand

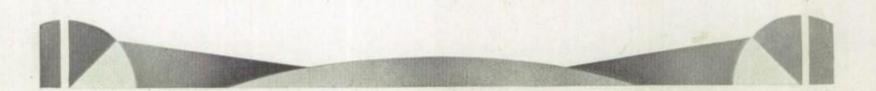

Ken Parker

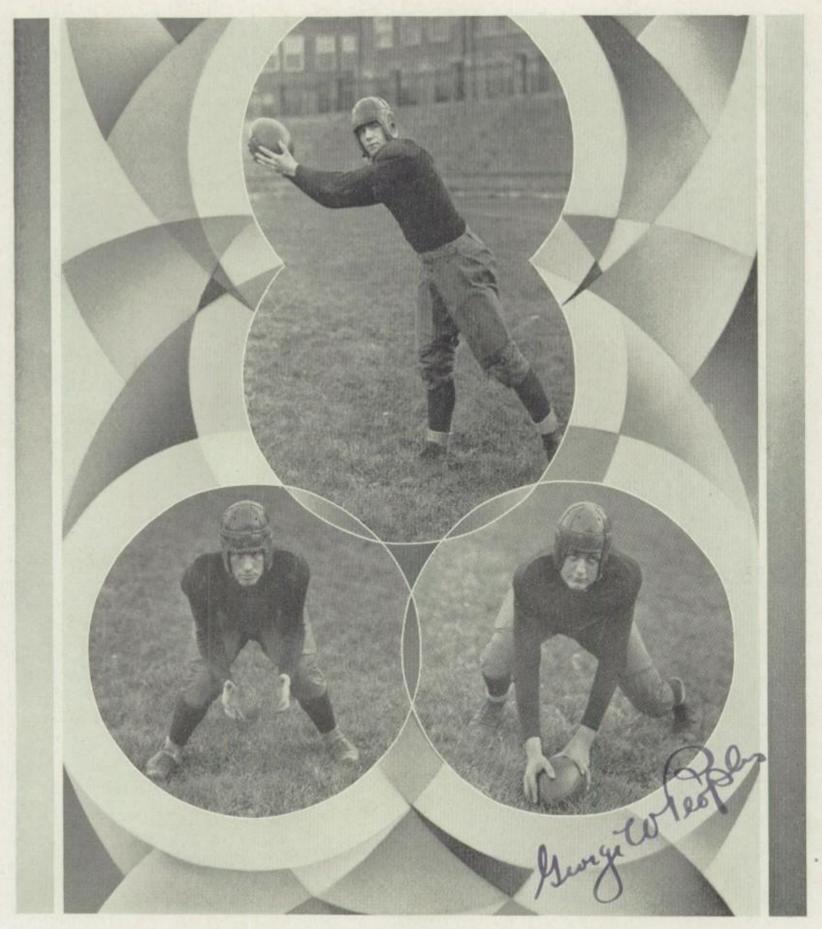

George Munson

GEORGE HAND (Full): George added to the team's strength this year by making himself one of the best line smashers and hardest hitters on a high school gridiron. If George keeps on improving a stone wall will never stop him.

GEORGE MUNSON (All Cincinnati Quarter): George was one of the best quarter backs ever turned out in a Cincinnati high school. It was his fine generalship on the gridiron that carried the team to success.

KEN PARKER (Tackle): Ken, on the defense was unbeatable. It delighted him to get through the line and break up plays before they were under way.

Jim Cummings

Harry McGugin

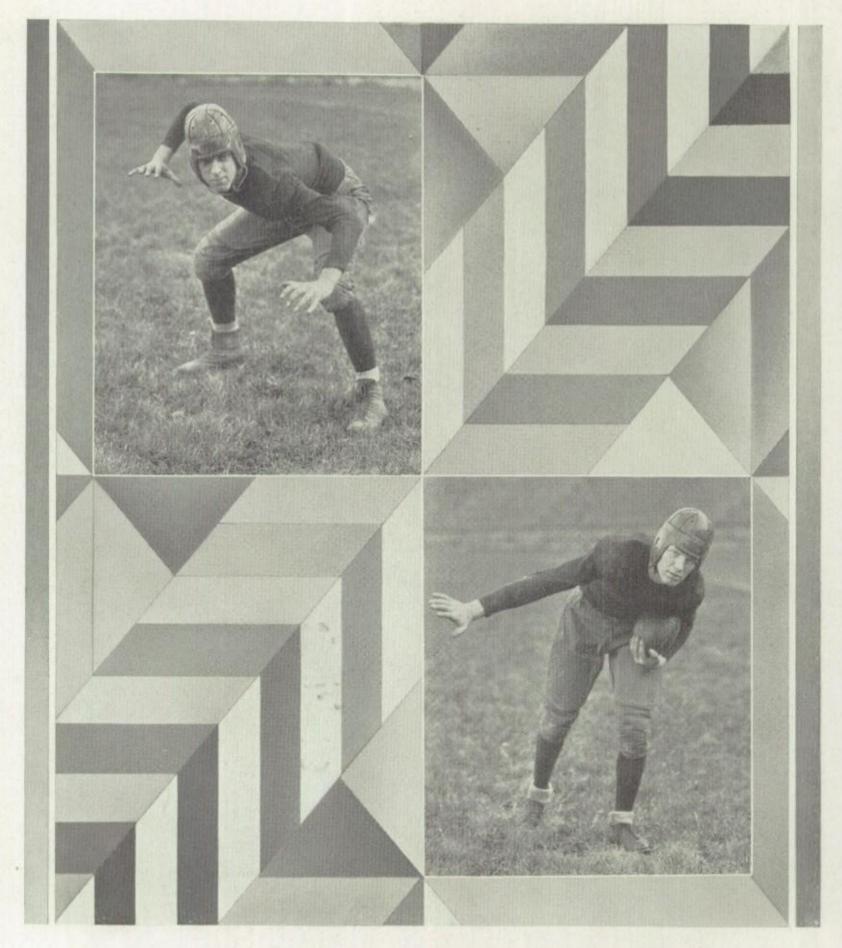

George Peoples

HARRY McGUGIN (End): "Mack" is only a Junior this year but how he could get down the field to cover punts! Very seldom did a runner get past Mac's end. His ability to play this position is hard to beat.

JIM CUMMINGS (Half): Jim was fast as lightning and slippery as a greased eel. When he had the ball he was so elusive that the enemy could not stop him from gaining yardage.

GEORGE PEOPLES (Center): Although this was George's first year out for the squad, he won his letter, and gave a good account of himself in every game in which he participated. He is a Junior and so will be additional strength for next year's team.

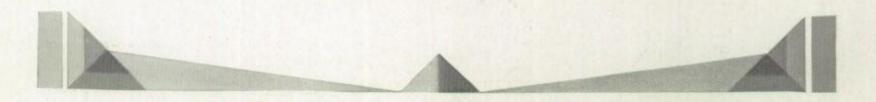

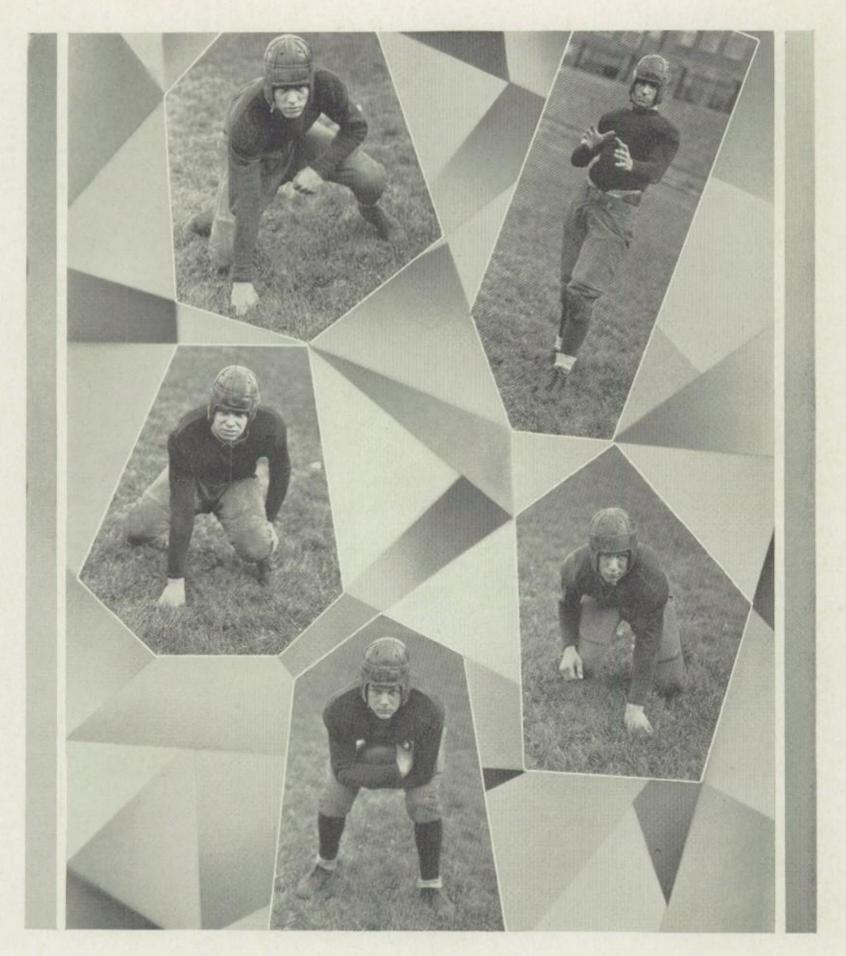

Horace Blinn

Charley Patten

HORACE BLINN (All Cincinnati End): Blinn is leaving us this year in body but not in memory. His wonderful playing at end will be remembered by all Withrowites. Horace could not be excelled when it came to snagging difficult passes at a critical stage of the game.

CHARLEY PATTEN (All Cincinnati Half): Charley needs no introduction. He had the true tiger fight in his veins. If the team needed a few yards for a first down or a touchdown, and line bucking proved futile, you could depend on Charley to make it around end.

R. Miller, End C. Bachler, Guard

C. Duncan, Full

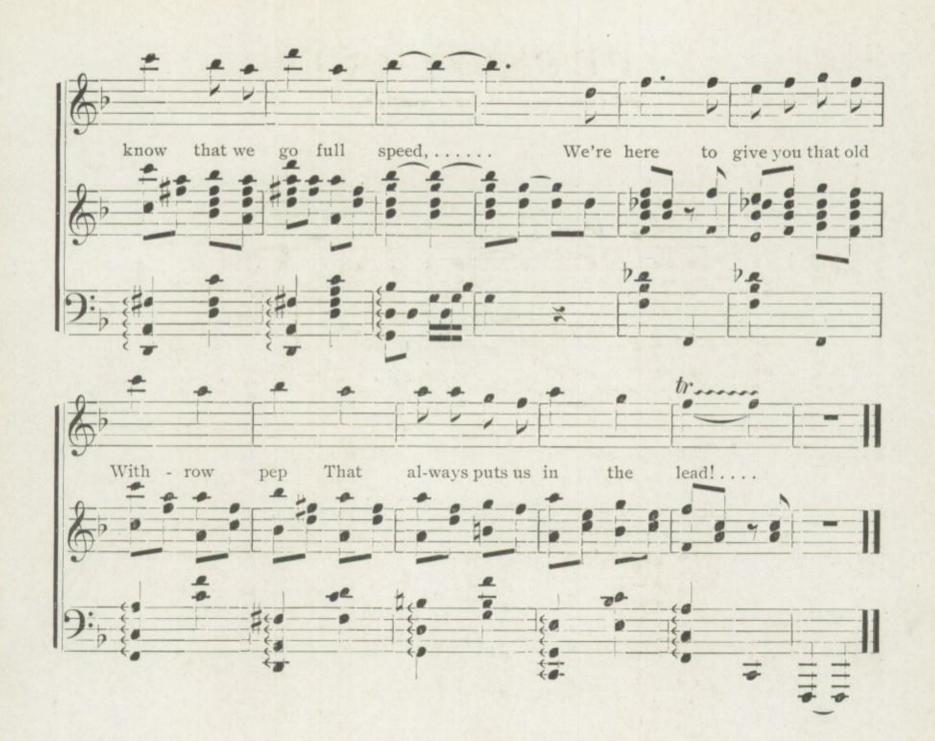

H. Wolff, Half
C. Lorenz, End

NUMERAL MEN

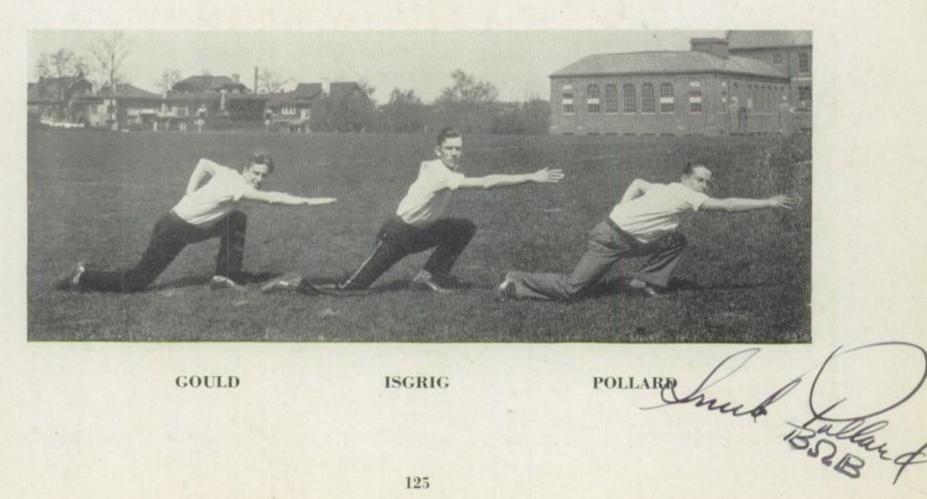

Miller played a great game this year. Bachler was full of fight. Lorenz was very quiet but very efficient. Duncan's work was most effective. Wolff showed speed and ability when he started on end runs.

CORNELL CUP

IN 1920 the Cornell Club of Cincinnati offered a trophy known as the Cornell Cup to any of the city high schools which should be regarded as the city champion. The school which should first win three city championships would be entitled to permanent possession of the cup. This cup has remained a contested trophy for eight years although only two schools have possessed championship teams during that time. Each year the deciding game has been between Hughes and Withrow and this has increased the rivalry between the schools until this game is considered by both schools as the big contest of the year.

The scores of these games are as follows:

BASKET BALL

FTER one year's trial of abolishing the school basket ball team, it was decided to resume this mid-winter sport. Candidates reported for practice immediately after the close of the football season and Coach Duning at once began drilling on the fundamental principles. As football men were again declared ineligible and many sophomores who reported for practice had not even seen a high school basket ball game, Coach found his candidates to be very inexperienced. Captain Dick Blackburn, a veteran of the team of '26, was the only man who had had any experience and it was around Dick that the team was formed.

The schedule was opened December 21 on the home floor with Harrison. Although trailing throughout three quarters, the Tigers rallied near the end of the game to win in the last minute, 21 to 19. A few days later Ohio Military met the Tigers on the Tiger floor, but proved no match for the wearers of the Orange and Black. In the first game, Rainey and Simmons were the only consistent basket shooters, while in the second, Collins ran wild scoring nineteen points.

Withrow opened the inter-scholastic schedule with Woodward on the home floor. The Tigers went down to a 30 to 26 defeat but apparently to an inferior team. The Tigers outpassed and out-fought the visitors, but Woodward's ability to cage foul shots, when they had the opportunity, gave the Bulldogs the victory. Simmons led the offense with eleven points, while Blackburn's floor work was unbeatable.

The Tigers had an off day when they played Walnut Hills, losing by four points. The team failed to work together, while the Eagles passed and shot with splendid accuracy. The game was slow and uninteresting, from a Withrow standpoint because of the poor demonstration of basketball shown by the team.

Hughes, the next opponent, sent the Tigers down to defeat in an overtime period, in one of the most exciting games seen on the Withrow floor. The Tigers showed their real strength by holding the Big Reds on even terms for four quarters; only to lose out when Shuck, Hughes giant center, dropped a bunny in the overtime period. All of the Tigers played a fast and clean game with Simmons again leading the attack and Luy and Blackburn guarding without fault.

The second game with Woodward was played at the Armory; and again Woodward was the winner, this time by two points in an overtime period. Withrow presented an almost entirely new line-up as several men were added to the squad after the mid-year exams. Marsh, a veteran of the team of '26 and a new addition to the squad, was by far the star of the game, contributing several long shots from the center of the floor and also keeping Higgins, the Woodward flash, well covered.

The Tigers avenged their first setback at the hands of Walnut Hills by taking the long end of a 37 to 17 score. The flashy floor work and accurate shooting of the Withrow five was too much for the Walnut Hills boys.

Hamilton displayed a well organized basket ball team that was seven points better than the Withrow boys. Hamilton passed fast and accurately to score time and again; Withrow was kept in the running by Boyd and Marsh, the former shooting from the side line and the latter from the center of the floor.

Withrow, encountering Hughes for the second time during the season at the U. C. gym, again dropped a heart-breaker. The Tigers led the way until the last few minutes when Marsh and Simmons were ejected for four fouls. This seemed to encourage the Big Reds, for they started a rally which put them one to the good at the close of the game. Marsh, Boyd, and Blackburn again starred for Withrow, while Shuck was Hughes' best man.

Withrow drew Hamilton in the Southwestern Ohio tournament held at the U. C. gym. Hamilton was by far superior to the Withrow boys, but were not sure of the game until the last few minutes. The Tigers seemed rather stale, but Hamilton played even better basket ball than in the first meeting.

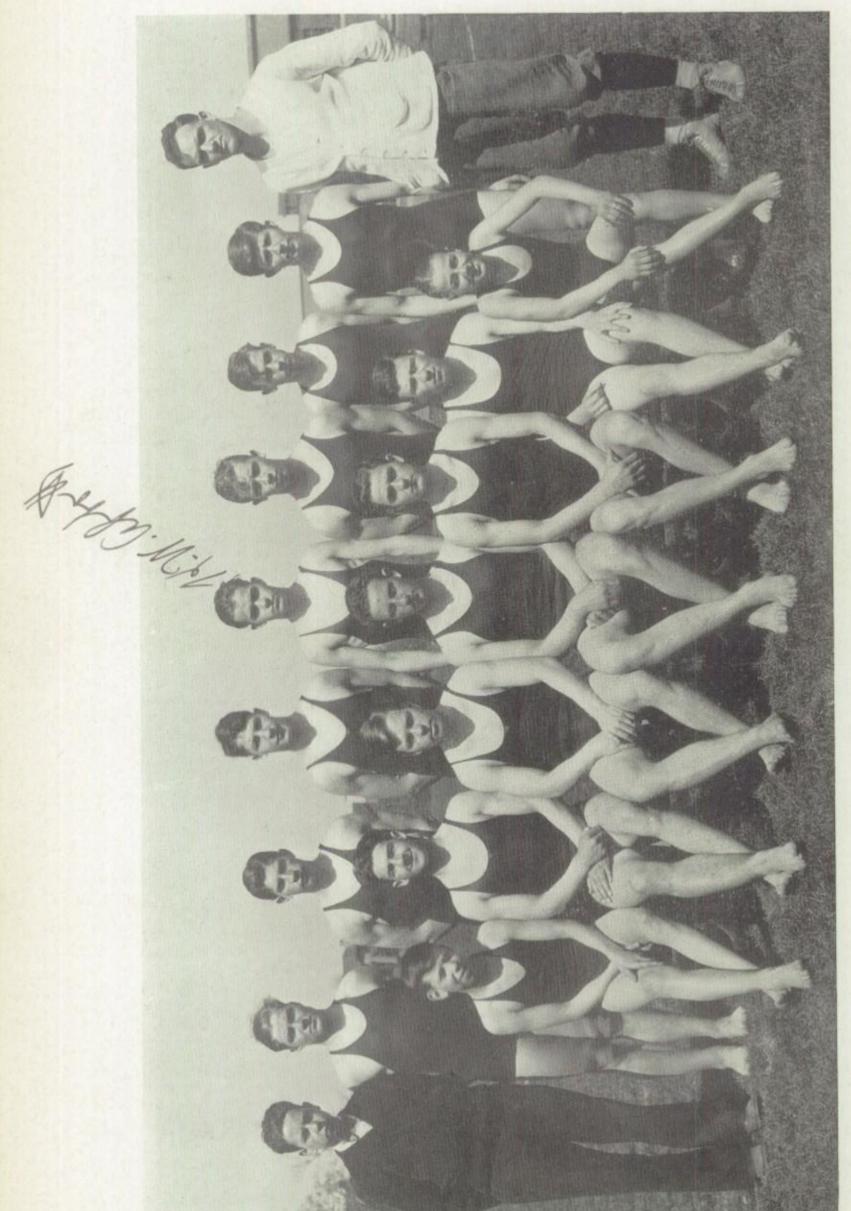

Hillsboro defeated the Tigers at Hillsboro 35 to 22, chiefly because the Withrow forwards continually hit the low rafters, when they shot at the basket. Withrow out-played their opponents the second half but were unable to overtake Hillsboro's lead.

In our last scheduled game, we defeated Dayton Catholic in one of the roughest games of the season. Dayton tied the score near the end of the game and from then on every one fouled at will. Bill Kisker came out of his slump by scoring ten points.

In the annual faculty game, which was the last appearance of the Tigers for the 1928 season, the faculty was defeated 25 to 18. Fifteen men played part of the game, while Mr. Peoples, Mr. Horton, Mr. Cadwallader, the four athletic coaches, Mr. Duning, Mr. Walke, Mr. Reuter and Mr. Gregg represented the faculty.

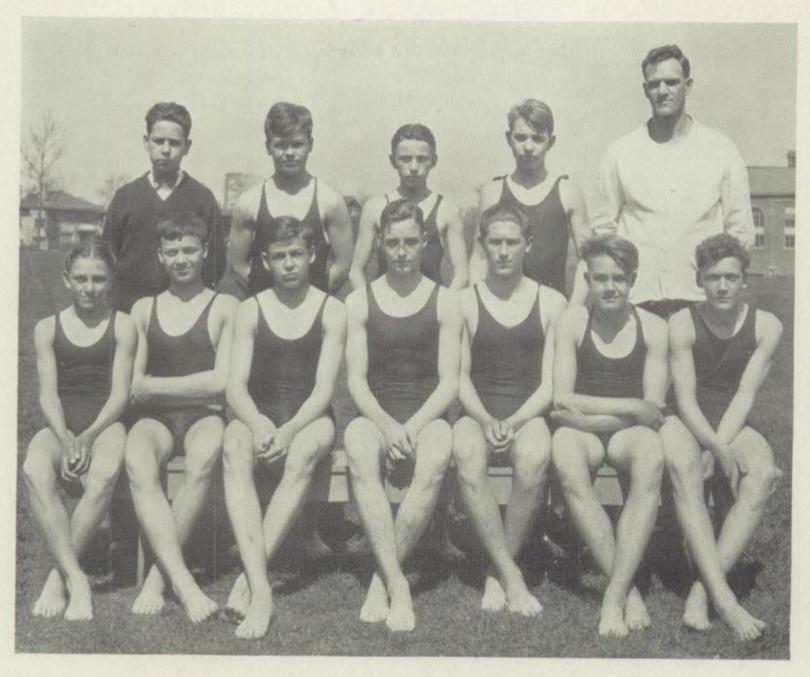

The team, although it has won but five of the thirteen games played, has scored as many points as did its opponents and has had more than a tough luck season. Coach loses Blackburn, Marsh, Berger, Kisker, and Bauer this year. Their loss will be felt, but with experienced men to work with next year Coach expects to bring the championship back to Withrow.

In the eleven games on the regular schedule, the team won four and lost seven and scored 280 points with an average of $25\frac{1}{2}$ points per game. Although beaten in the majority of games, the Tigers held their opponents to close scores throughout.

SWIMMING

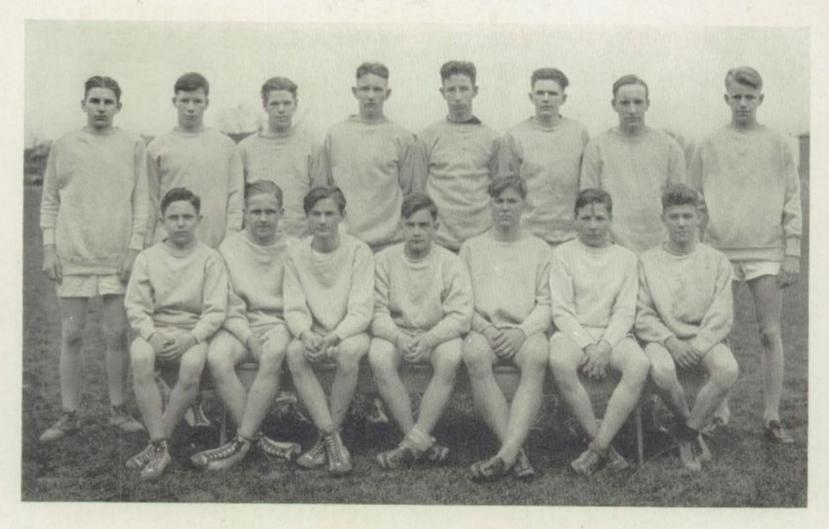

HREE or four weeks before the intercholastic meets, Coach Gregg issued a call for candidates and immediately began building up the team. Ballman and Marshall were the only letter men left from the preceding year, the rest of the candidates being inexperienced. After three weeks of hard practice the team faced its first real test at the Y. M. C. A. The Tigers took second in the meet, Ballman and Marshall being the outstanding stars. The second meet, on January 13, was a duplicate of the first; the team taking second place with 21 points. The third and fourth meets the Tigers cinched the second place cup for the four meets but were unable to overtake the commanding lead Hughes had piled up during the first two meets.

Withrow was also represented this year with a junior swimming team, but although they worked hard, they were only able to take third place in the four meets.

Captain Ballman was a capable leader and outstanding star of the team. He scored 50 out of a possible 60 points in the four meets and holds the record for the 50, 100, and 200-yard dashes. B. Marshall and C. Mayer could always be relied upon, the former in diving, 100-yard dash, and relay, the latter in breast stroke and relay. For the Juniors, Fosdick and Bergman were consistent point makers with 17 and 12 points respectively.

Although not city champions, Withrow represented by Laub, Mayer, Marshall and Ballman captured second place in the state meet held at Dayton, Ohio. Ballman took first in the 60 and 100-yard dashes, but lacked one point of tying the high point man of the meet.

TRACK

In order to follow the example set by the track team of 1927, the trackmen of '28 had to take first place in the Oxford and U. C. meets. This was quite a high mark at which to aim, but the team went to work with a will under the leadership of Captain McGugin, worked out every night on the indoor track and were rewarded for their efforts by capturing the Armory meet from such strong teams as Columbus East, Columbus Central, and Hughes.

The next two meets were dual meets with Norwood and Hartwell on the outdoor track at the Withrow stadium. Norwood proved no match for the Tigers but Hartwell forced the Orange and Black to go the limit to take the meet.

Withrow sent representatives to the Ohio relays at Columbus but failed to make much of a showing. Pottschmidt reached the finals in the 100 yard dash, C. Patten was disqualified in the semi-finals in the low hurdles, while Fleming managed to take fourth place in the high jump.

Withrow established a record for high point scoring at Oxford, when they made 69½ points, the largest score that any team has ever made at the Oxford meets. Roosevelt, Stivers and Greenville were the Tigers' closest competitors with 34, 27, and 25 points respectively. Withrow took seven firsts, four seconds, two thirds, and three fourths in this meet. Thirteen men scored points for Withrow with Patten and Fleming heading the list with ten points each, being closely followed by Pottschmidt and McGugin with nine points.

Owing to the lack of interest in the other Cincinnati high schools there were no junior or senior meets held between the local high schools. U. C. has terminated their annual track meet for high schools; thus leaving the state meet at Columbus on May 25 and 26 as the last meet on the schedule.

The winner of the Ohio State meet is to be declared state champion and the trackmen are working hard to be in the best of shape for that meet. Coach Reuter thinks that the team has a splendid chance of winning several places as the track team is the best balanced squad in the history of the school.

TUMBLING TEAM

TUMBLING

HIS is the first year for a recognized tumbling team in the history of the school. At the beginning of the year many boys became interested in tumbling and began practicing during their spare time. William Hawley, their leader, upon the suggestion of several boys asked Mr. Reuter for permission to form a team to be recognized as the Withrow tumbling team. With his permission, a team was organized and Coach Walke was asked to coach it which he promised to do as soon as he could make the necessary arrangements. The team decided to practice every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday in the gym.

After these preliminaries, the team was called together for its first regular practice, fifteen boys reporting. Announcements were made in the Tower News and in the gym classes. The team increased in size, but Coach Walke was not long in weeding the team through an examination of each tumbler's abilities.

Inter-school competing was impossible as the other high schools of the city did not have a tumbling team. However, the team practiced faithfully and gave their act at several of the school entertainments.

The team wishes to thank Coach Walke for his work with them and they sincerely hope that in the following years, the tumbling team will be continued and in time take its place with the other school teams.

INTRA-MURAL ATHLETICS

ITHROW has had intra-mural athletics ever since the school was organized. This type of sport has been carried on in the hope of giving those who may not have the ability to make the various school teams a chance to participate in school athletics. It has been through this form of athletics that good material for school teams has been coached and developed. Many boys who do not wish to spend every afternoon in participating in athletics and many who know nothing about the different games played, take part in the intramural method of carrying on athletics.

This year home room foot ball was not carried on because of lack of space but home room basket ball games were conducted every Tuesday and Thursday afternoons before the school team began its practice. Each home room was represented by a team of eight or ten boys; the teams being divided into three leagues: freshman, sophomore and junior-senior. Pennants were given to the winning teams thus increasing competition between the rooms. The champion-ship games of each league were exciting and interesting especially in the junior-senior league, when 217 had to play 312 twice before being declared champions.

As had been the custom for the last three years, the boxing and wrestling tournaments were held in the gym. This kind of athletics depended upon the individual for no teams were formed, each man being placed in a group of those about his own age and weight. This method of division made the bouts more equal as the two contenders were about the same age and weight. Medals were awarded to the winners and runner-up of each group, making the championship well worth winning. Those who did not participate in the tournaments showed their interest by attending the many bouts conducted.

Through this plan of intra-mural athletics many new acquaintances were made and a general good feeling created between the boys who took part. Many participated in athletics under this plan who would probably have never taken part in athletics in any way outside of the regular gym work.

BASEBALL

BECAUSE of the late spring baseball practice, was held up for a week or so, but as the sun had warmed things up, about eighty candidates turned out to try to make the team. After a week's hard drill in batting and infield work, Coach Duning gave out suits to those who looked the most promising. Munson, displaying the best form behind the bat, was chosen to captain the team because of his knowledge of baseball and his work with the stick. Blinn soon proved his right to cover first base, and Edwards, through his hitting and dependable fielding, scooped them up at second. Taylor at short and Berger at third held down the right side of a scrappy infield. Kohl, Marsh and Cochran composed a fast fielding and heavy hitting outfield who could go far for hard hit balls and hit with men on bases. Boyd and Steckel were the first string hurlers, each having a nice curve ball to mix in with his fast one. Ostendorp, Kisker, Miller, Hand, Askren and Flora made the regulars set a fast pace in order to keep their positions.

Withrow met Hamilton at that city in their opening game and brought home a seventeen inning 5 to 4 victory. Boyd pitching for Withrow, and Williams for Hamilton were the individual stars, both going the full route. Although Withrow was weak with the stick, Coach Duning was well pleased with the work of all his men considering that this was the first game of the season.

After a week of intensive practice in batting, Withrow handed the Woodward Bulldogs a 4 to 1 defeat. Steckel held the Bulldog batters helpless while the Tigers fattened their batting averages at the expense of the Woodward pitcher. Walnut Hills fell before the Tigers at Noyes field by a 7 to 2 score because of Withrow's superior hitting and fielding. Boyd, pitching the game for Withrow, allowed the Eagles to hit the ball and bore down only when runners got on bases.

The following Tuesday, Withrow met the Norwood Indians on the home field and sent them away with a stinging 8 to 6 defeat. Steckel was touched for several hits in the early innings but got by with only one run scored until the seventh, when he was relieved by Boyd. Five successive hits off Boyd was good for five runs, but Boyd, having warmed up during that time easily held Norwood at bay for the remainder of the game. Withrow's ability to hit the ball safely when men got on bases won the game.

The Hughes game, an important inter-scholastic tilt, was played in a driving rain, about the worst kind of a day for baseball. Withrow played sloppy baseball both in the field and in running bases and were forced to submit to a 5 to 3 defeat. Boyd pitched a nice game but received poor support from the team.

Withrow met Woodward in the second round of the inter-scholastic chamchionship games and again beat the Woodward boys; this twice by a 7 to 5 score. Withrow hit Dorn, Woodward pitcher, hard; every man on the team getting at least one hit. Woodward scored their runs in the late innings on clean hits and on two Withrow errors.

While Steckel was holding the Walnut Hills nine to two runs, Withrow hit three Walnut Hills pitchers for twenty hits, good for seventeen runs. The game was played in a drizzling rain and Withrow took advantage of the Eagle's errors caused by the slippery ball.

The schedule for the 1928 season will be completed when Elder and Hughes meet the Tigers on their home grounds and the Hamilton Tournament at Hamilton is completed. Although one defeat is chalked up against the Tigers, they are still tied with Hughes for the city championship as that school was defeated by Walnut Hills. The winners of the remaining games cannot be stated but it is certain that Coach Dunings's boys will make a good showing as to their ability and sportsmanlike playing.

HOCKEY

HIS year the hockey season was unusually successful because of the great number of freshmen who came out regularly for practice. Not only did they come out, but they soon mastered the rules and played some excellent games. Several times they gave the upper classmen some anxious moments. The weather was very good—cold, clear, and crisp—and only two games had to be postponed account of rain.

The final games ended in a tie for first place between the seniors and juniors, also a tie for third place between the freshmen and sophomores. When the deciding games were settled, the seniors had first place; juniors, second; freshmen, third; and sophomores, fourth.

This is the second year that the hockey team of the class of '28 has had first place, having won the championship when juniors. But now that they are leaving, the class of '29 can come into its own and have the honor of winning first place, we hope, before its members graduate.

The members of the championship team are as follows:

Clover Hoy Lucile Puckett Ruth Heeb Jean Valentiner
Dorothy Behymer
Marian Plogman
Marian Thaubald
Elizabeth Caito, Captain

Ruth Wilson Anna Marchman Pauline Hopkins

The captains of the class teams are as follows:

BASKET BALL

A T the close of the basket ball season, the juniors and seniors were tied for the champion-ship. The sophomores were drawn into the decision of championship; the first team having won all their games, but the second team losing enough games to lower the percentage of the sophomores to third place. In recognition of the undefeated team, a compromise resulted which provided that any team, winning the greatest number of games, would receive small felt basket balls. In playing off the tie for championship, the first and second teams of the seniors and juniors played and the two teams of the same class had to win to gain the championship; however, in case of a second tie, the sum of the scores of the first and second teams of the same class was to decide the championship in favor of the class having the greater sum.

Amid much cheering and enthusiasm the junior first team was crushed under the heel of the senior first team by a score of 20-12. There was a great deal of competition between the junior and senior second teams—not only on the basket ball floor but among many enthusiastic rooters. However, the good cheering and the good playing of the seniors, led them to a victory of 9-6, making the seniors champions of 1928.

More fun! More hairpins lost! This might suitably be the slogan for the month of January, 1928, when the group basket ball games were played. Any group of ten girls could form a team, choose a name, and challenge any other such team. Twenty-two teams were organized and thirty-four games were played, twenty-six of which were played on schedule in a period of ten days of playing. To accommodate such a great number, the two division court was used and two games were played at the same time.

This year was the first time that group games were conducted in this manner. Everyone who took part on a team derived a great deal of fun and amusement from playing and also gained a greater knowledge of the game. This playing was very good practice for qualifying for a first or second class team, as well as aiding the gym teachers in choosing the teams.

It may be interesting to know that one hundred and fifty-one girls participated in the January games, and of this number, one hundred and one played eight quarters which entitled them to twenty-five points toward their "W".

Of the twenty-two teams which played, the Tadpoles was the only team which went through the series undefeated. Their success was due to excellent team work plus a capable captain. The girls on the championship class team are these seniors:

> Clover Hoy, Captain Ruth Heeb Helen Marie Floer Lucile Puckett Katherine Vordenfelde Else Lehman Elizabeth Caito Marian Plogman

Ruth Hunter Ruth Teagle Jean Valentiner

BASEBALL

HE juniors undeniably won the class baseball championship, having lost no games. Their enviable place, as champions, was largely gained by their excellent teamwork and their invincible battery—Ruth Webster, as pitcher, and Kathryn Pollard, as catcher. Because of the unusual number which turned out for baseball practice, the sophomores and freshmen had sufficient number to form first and second teams and played a series of games between themselves. Of this series, the freshman second team edged out the sophomore second team in the final game for the champion individual team.

COLOR DAY

HE second "Color Day", the girls' annual track meet, was held on April 30. The feature of the day, the class entrance, was very cleverly and very well done. The "Jolly Juniors," a crew of blood-thirsty pirates in their red sailing-vessel bringing forth a buried treasure, won first place for class entrance. The sophomores, a company of blue and white showing their colors in a flag drill, took second place. The seniors, forming the letters G. A. A. and carrying orange ribboned hockey sticks, basket balls, and baseball bats, received third place. The freshmen, playing leap frog and giving their class yell, obtained fourth place.

The results of the meet were: seniors, 61½ points; juniors, 29½ points; sophomores, 57 points; and freshmen, 31 points. The class of '28 have won every track meet since 1924 when they were freshmen.

The holders of individual places were:

CALENDAR

SEPTEMBER

- Mon. 12 Well, we're back once more. Everyone seems happy but it's only the beginning. Tues. 13 It's really a good thing that the Withrow Book is now out. Several freshmen have
- been turned in to 104.
- It looks like we eat tomorrow. Mr. Mathias called a meeting of the lunchroom staff Wed. 14 after school today.
- Thurs. 15 Sure enough, we had regular sessions today. Some of the youngsters were worried because there was no place for lunch on their programs.
- Fri. 16 We've been bad this soon. Detention opened and a good attendance was reported.
- Our first auditorium session. My, the family is growing! But everyone is wel-Mon. come. The freshmen are amusing with their unusual salute.
- Tues. 20 Football practice is in full sway. The prospects seem brilliant. Wed.
- Locker keys are distributed. Now we don't have to trust every one.

 The Library opened today. Now we have a more comfortable place to while away Thurs. 22 all of those needless study bells.
- Fri. 23 We must have been nervous today. Several spills in the lunchroom. But was it nerves which prompted Marg Ervin to impatiently shove that unfortunate freshman's tray?
- 26 Mon. Our younger students were reprimanded this morning for running in the halls. Mr. Lyon wasn't specific, but certainly he referred only to them.
- Wed. Tower News out today. This is the earliest issue we have ever had. The Bank opened. Now we can start to save our pennies for Christmas.
- Thurs. 29 Why are seniors always having mishaps in the lunchroom?
- Fri. Mr. Surdo directed the orchestra at a most interesting assembly. Also some cheers and pep songs! More excitement! There was a fire in the girls' gym. The freshmen girls just had to jump up and look at the big red engines. The first football game with Elder.

OCTOBER

- Mon. Our boys made a good start with a 14-6 victory last Friday. An order was issued that no cars be parked in the drive.
- Tues. We believe in being prepared. A fire drill today.
- The first meeting of the Special Chorus. A-D party after school. The freshmen Wed. girls were scarcely distinguishable from our seventh graders with their hair-bows.
- Thurs. 6 Another fire drill! Senior class elections. The officers have already begun to work, with a conference with Mr. Lyon about the rings and pins.
- Fri. Game with Hamilton. Tom Elliott spoke on the Situation in China at an assembly.
- Mon. Rosalind Surdo gave an organ recital after school. It was surely appreciated. We tied Hamilton in the game Friday 6-6.
- Tues. It doesn't do much good to bring a machine to school since one must walk several blocks after parking. Holiday tomorrow because we were discovered.
- Fri. Miss Hunter spoke to the classes in Home Economics on Damask and Fine Linen. Game with Roosevelt tomorrow at Dayton. The G. A. A. gave a "hare and hound" chase today. What a merry chase, usually in the wrong direction.
- The score of the game with Roosevelt was 39-0. 'Nuff said! Clifford Goldsmith Mon. spoke to the school on the Evolution of the Bath. His talk tickled us much as that first drop of water must have done the primitive man.
- Tues. The pupils of Miss Dickinson's fifth bell class looked happy for the first time since school began. And no wonder, because it's the first time that they've really eaten
- Wed. 19 Thalian Dramatic Club held its tryouts today. Hockey captains were elected.

Welding Jewelry in the Arts and Crafts Departments

- Thurs. 20 Dr. Winston spoke to the school concerning the Public Health Movement.
- Fri. 21 Another assembly! Soon we'll have the habit so bad that we'll come without being asked. Lynn Barber, a former student, spoke in favor of a bond issue for U. C. Game with Miami Military Institute tomorrow.
- Mon. 24 Our team came out at the top of a 20-0 score in the game with M. M. I. Another fire drill. We wonder just how they know in which bell a fire is going to break out?
- Tues. 25 A new music club, the Euterpeans, has entered our ranks at Withrow.
- Wed. 26 Wallace Hill of the "Y", spoke to the boys on How to Run the Race of Life. Kalidasa held its first meeting today. It promises to be bigger, better, and busier than ever before.
- Thurs. 27 Holiday tomorrow because of Southwestern Ohio Teachers Association. Game with Xenia there.
- Mon. 31 Our Tigers edged in for a 19-13 victory over Xenia.

NOVEMBER

- Tues. I Miss Shafer gave a talk on soap sculpture illustrating her talk with carvings, some in color. Withrow is pretty well represented in the arts.
- Thurs. 3 Isn't that profile familiar? Why, of course, it's on every buffalo nickel. Red men of the tribe of Blackfeet Indians visited our school and provided us with much diversion. Also the senior-junior hockey game, but the less said of that, the better.
- Fri. 4 Pep meeting this morning in anticipation of the game with Woodward after school.
- Mon. 7 Again Withrow triumphs! A 51-12 victory over Woodward.
- Wed. 9 Tower News out today. Senior-junior hockey game. Score 1-0, which tells a sad story.
- Thurs. 10 Assembly this morning. Game with Walnut Hills. Holiday tomorrow!
- Mon. 14 Such a game! Our team held Walnut Hills to a 57-0 score. Rather one-sided, but we're proud of it.
- Wed. 16 Separate assembly for boys and girls. The Thalians entertained their new members. From some of the rumors which floated from 120, we judge that everyone had an exceptionally jolly time.
- Thurs. 17 We all behaved very well today, considering the proximity of It.
- Fri. 18 At last! Everyone blossomed out in gala attire. Everywhere one glances, he sees orange. A special issue of Tower News came out this morning. Pom-poms and chrysanthemums were sold in home-rooms.
- Mon. 21 It's all over but we'll never forget it. Withrow downed Hughes by an 18-6 victory! It was reported that a Hughes teacher lost her charm at the game. We believe that even that could happen.
- Tues. 22 Game with Hartwell at Carthage Fair grounds.
- Wed. 23 Our team climaxed a brilliant season by defeating Hartwell 31-0.

DECEMBER

- Fri. 2 Football banquet tonight. A group left today for Columbus to attend the State convention as representatives of the publications of Withrow.
- Wed. 7 The sale of Christmas cards for the Annual started this morning. We were honored with the presence of Gen. H. M. Lord, director of the national budget.
- Fri. 9 Every one was swimming today. The senior girls splashed in to victory but our boys were not so successful at the Y, carrying off second awards.
- Mon. 12 Did Ruth Otto look haughty today? Well, don't mind her. She wants everyone to know she's a senior.

Making Jewelry in the Arts and Crafts Departments

- Tues. 13 Sue must have become very tired this morning in assembly, judging from the number of times she "shifted." The Cornell Cup is really ours now. It was presented by Mr. LeBlond of Cornell to James Dolbey who accepted it in behalf of the school.
- Wed. 14 The second home room meeting was held this morning. The senior boys seemed to be quite musical. The girls held their assembly in the auditorium, where a delightful program was presented.
- Thurs. 15 The senior girls were glad that Miss Dyer forgot them last month for they enjoyed a most interesting afternoon at U. C.
- Fri. 16 There can be no mistake now about our being seniors because we have our rings and pins.
- Mon. 19 We don't blame Miss Strate for disliking Monday. How much our grades would be improved if Monday were dropped from the calendar.
- Tues. 20 Kalidasa was held in the auditorium where a program suggestive of the coming holidays was held. Shades of our childhood day! Those peppermint sticks were good, though.
- Wed. 21 The basket ball season opened with a 19-13 victory over Harrison High.
- Thurs. 22 The Kalidasa pins arrived today. It was quite some fun trying to locate them but finally they were all found.
- Fri. 23 A Christmas program was given by the musical organizations. The lolly-pops which were distributed by Tower News were very much in evidence, especially during the first performance.

JANUARY

- Tues. 3 Isn't there something different about 120? Why, of course! Santa must have left some new chairs there.
- Wed. 4 Girl's basket ball is progressing splendidly. We wonder where they got all those names.
- Thurs. 5 Will wonders ever cease? Mr. Lyon has consented to a dance for the seniors. In 325, the junior girl's home-room, there are 100 entrolled and they had 100 percent attendance today.
- Fri. 6 Withrow defeated Ohio Military Institute, 27-18, in a fast game.
- Mon. 9 All these proofs being displayed! Most of us are in doubt as to whether or not we should feel flattered.
- Tues. 10 Why should they take up that 2-cent collection so soon after Christmas? Most of us are even doing without lunch, trying to pay for some of those extravagant purchases.
- Wed. 11 He can sure hold on to that pigskin but when it comes to an aluminum tray—well, that's not so good. For particulars, see Bill Curry.
- Thurs. 12 The office staff wishes there were more days like this one. Not one junior boy and only twenty-five altogether were absent today.
- Fri. 13 Mr. G. C. Douglas spoke to the school on Temperance. There seemed to be a jinx over us today. We lost the game with Woodward, 30-26, and came in second in Swimming meet at the Y.
- Mon. 16 Did some of the characters of an old Fairy Tale book come to life this afternoon?

 No, it was only the actors from Miss Baehr's third period class who presented "Cinderella" for the French Club.
- Tues. 17 There's no excuse for our not learning history now since we even have moving pictures of historical events. This was inaugurated today with the picture of "Columbus."
- Wed. 18 Miss Grace Leigh Scott gave a most interesting talk on "Youth Holds the Key."
- Thurs. 19 How did it ever happen? Walnut Hills defeated Withrow by a 31-26 score. We hope that that will never happen again.
- Fri. 20 School was dismissed at noon. The Parent-Teachers Association held its meeting at Withrow.
- Tues. 24 Today the "Jamestown" picture was shown.
- Wed. 25 A machine controlled entirely by radio was run around the stadium. Tower News out this morning.
- Thurs. 26 Bad luck still pursues our team. Hughes won out in an overtime game by two points, 23-21. There was a brief assembly this morning.
- Fri. 27 Has Marg Ervin adopted a kindergarten? Oh, those are just the new members that she is taking to Tower Y.
- Mon. 30 Another wonder! Only one senior girl absent but we'd be the last ones to mention any names.
- Tues. 31 Those fatal days have come at last. After that English exam, we wonder if, when we are educated, it will not be our "Public Duty" to abolish examinations.

FEBRUARY

- Mon. 6 If last week was hard on us, this week is going to be worse. We knew that we didn't know much but we surely didn't realize that it was as bad as some of these marks indicate.
- Tues. 7 Tower News out today. Another picture show after school.
- Wed. 8 The girl's first interclass basket ball game today. The sophomores defeated the frosh 11-7.
- Mon. 13 The seniors went to the auditorium to receive various bits of advice concerning the party tomorrow. The boys were kept after the girls. Many and varied were the rumors of what passed then, but—who knows?
- Tues. 14 At last, the day of days has arrived! The party and dance were surely a success. Ask any senior, and he'll tell you. Weren't all those valentines for Miss Marshall interesting? And she's so polite, she must thank the donors.

- Wed. 15 Mr. Meyer spoke to the school on that most discussed question, Labor and Capital. The picture of the Puritans was shown this afternoon.
- Thurs. 16 The second of the girl's interclass swimming meet was held this afternoon. Oh, of course, the seniors won. That's to be expected.
- Fri. 17 At last, the streak of misfortune must have faded out. Our Tigers swamped the Walnut Hills Eagles with a 39-17 victory.
- Mon. 20 We learned today that our boys won in the State track meet at Columbus. They also came in second in the swimming meet at Dayton, Lakewood High being first.
- Tues. 21 Tower News out today. The picture "Peter Stuyvesant" was shown after school. Fri. 24 Again our team was defeated by the big Hughes team and sad to say the score was
- Mon. 27 Our team suffered another defeat at the hands of the Hillsboro team Saturday
- Mon. 27 Our team suffered another defeat at the hands of the Hillsboro team Saturday drawing the small end of a 35-22 score. The senior girls defeated the juniors in a fast game.

MARCH

- Thurs. 8 Did anyone miss two dollars? That amount was sent to the office today with no name or purpose.
- Fri. 9 Miss Grove sang a group of old Scotch ballads to the school today. Mr. Bechtold gave a very amusing sketch which kept the audience in a constant uproar. The senior girls defeated the juniors for the basket ball championship.
- Mon. 12 The freshmen are leading by a wide margin in the interclass mileage swim.
- Tues. 13 The A and B boys had an assembly all to themselves this morning. C. E. Lee and F. Haehler were the speakers.
- Wed. 14 We can't blame spring fever for our low grades now. Brrr---, it's cold!
- Thurs. 15 If our younger students get restless, we suggest that they apply to Miss Hardisty who can supply them with dolls of any description.
- Fri. 16 Our team defeated that of Dayton Catholic High by the close score of 27-25. After that game, the women faculty defeated the senior girls overwhelmingly. We feel sure that the fault was in the referee.
- Thurs. 22 Students aren't the only ones who have good times at Withrow. This afternoon the Faculty had its own party. Nuff said!
- Fri. 23 A great majority of the school was given a mental test this morning. No, those who didn't take it were not hopeless cases. They had simply had it before. The faculty game took place this afternoon. What more can be said about it?
- Tues. 27 Tower News out. Mr. Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, gave an interesting talk on character, using as his slogan, "Carry on."
- Wed. 28 Three short taps of the bell, then silence. A door is heard opening, then another and a multitude of feet hurry down the hall. Just one of those usual fire-drills. But it seems that only three rooms responded to Mr. Lyon's private call. It's fortunate the whole school didn't.
- Thurs. 29 Mr. Edward Avis of Springfield, Massachusetts, entertained the school with imitations of bird songs and calls.
- Fri. 30 This morning the Annual popularity contest was held. Such a variety of choices.

APRIL

- Tues. 2 Tower News out. Prof. Henson of Purdue spoke in behalf of the W. F. P. S.

- Thurs. 4 Mr. Henry Turner Bailey addressed the school with a most interestingly illustrated talk on the Beauty in Nature.
- Mon. 9 Prof. Yuell spoke to the Seniors in an all-too-short assembly.

A Group of Girls from the Dancing Club

Tues. 10 Those boys interested in the C. M. T. C. met in the auditorium. The enrollment of the W. F. P. S. was made in home-rooms. Withrow defeated Hamilton 5-4 in a good fast game.

11 Home-room meetings. The Alumnae edition of Tower News out. There seems to be a great epidemic of spring fever this afternoon. The opening game is a sure remedy, though.

Wed.

Thurs. 12 Mr. H. W. Gibson spoke to the school this morning. His theme was "Character" and as a "Y" Secretary, he has a splendid opportunity for observing this.

Fri. 13 The entire school gathered for a most interesting incident. Mr. Robert McIntosh, '21, presented an oil portrait of Mr. Lyon by Dixie Selden. The C and D classes heard students from the Conservatory of Music sing ballads. The seniors, proud of their invitation to the Alumnal banquet, were very much in evidence and proved what a lively class '28 is.

Tues. 17 The annual pictorial issue of Tower News was out this morning. The senior boys must certainly be in need of guidance, judging from the number of assemblies they have. Tower Y girls believe in family affairs. They gave a "Pa, Ma and Me" banquet.

Wed. 18 The scholarship pins were distributed today. How proudly those gold ones shine!

Thurs. 19 The seniors conducted an assembly concerning the Community Chest. We had a fire-drill.

Fri. 20 The annual dramatic production of the school was presented in the form of "Clarence." The Dancing Club also gave a program.

Mon. 23 We were to have an assembly but no speaker arrived. Carolyn White and Fred Becker were elected editors of Tower News for the coming year.

Tues. 24 Tower News out.

Wed. 25 For the fourth time, the senior boys went to the auditorium. It's coming close to the end now. Pictures of the girls' teams were taken after school.

Thurs. 26 The boys on the various teams had their pictures taken today.

Fri. 27 Kalidasa gave a party for the girls of '29.

Mon. 30 Color Day! The seniors, for the fourth consecutive year, walked off with honors. This gives '28 all championships except baseball.

MAY

Tues. 1 Pictures of organizations were taken for the Annual. Comments were heard on the splendid membership of Tower Y. It was amazing! But try to collect dues from many of them.

Wed. 2 The Class Officers of '29 were formally installed by Mr. Hamilton, Clover Hoy welcoming them. The new editors of Tower News were also installed by James Golden. The program included a talk on Forest Preservation by Edwin Teimeyer and several musical numbers.

Fri. 4 Baseball game with Woodward.

Mon. 7 The Tennis Club held its first meeting and election of officers after school.

Tues. 8 Tower News out.

Wed. 9 Home-room meetings were held this morning. The senior girls occupied the music room and enjoyed a delightful musical program.

Fri. 11 Seven short periods and school was dismissed, the reason being Parents Day. The lunch room served 2400 people. Baseball game with Walnut Hills resulted in a 17-2 victory for Withrow.

Mon. 14 Withrow won a track meet Saturday at Oxford with 69½ points, Roosevelt of Dayton being second with 34.

Tues. 15 Tower News out. The juniors gathered in the auditorium to learn about their selection of studies.

Wed. 16 Today the C grade were told about selection of studies for next year. All incomplete work must be finished today. Some of us didn't realize just how much we had loafed.

Thurs. 17 The freshmen were shown how to make out their selection this morning. We seniors feel rather left out of it all. Big surprise! Miss Fennekohl visited the swimming meet this afternoon.

Fri. 18 It has been rumored that the seniors will be assigned no more work, but it is only a rumor. The seniors practiced their commencement music.

Mon. 28 Future Withrowites visit the school. We thought the seventh graders were a nuisance, but these eighth graders!

JUNE

Fri. 1 The first performance of the Ninth Annual Concert.

Mon. 4 Our last assembly, Class Day. The scholarship certificates were presented to honor pupils in the senior class.

Tues. 5 Senior exams. Wed. 6 And more! Thurs. 7 Still more!

Fri. 8 Well, that's over but the results. How some of us wish we had studied a little bit harder and gotten out of those things.

Mon. 11 A whole week with nothing to do. How can we ever spend all this surplus time?
Tues. 12 Exams for lower classmen. How some of those poor unfortunates wish they hadn't

Wed. 13 Their misery continues.

Thurs. 14 The seniors practice their commencement music.

Fri. 15 Commencement—the beginning—?

HUMOR

HUMOR

Did you ever Go to the library The sixth And decide to hurry through your Chemistry And you read a few paragraphs And the sun beat down On the back of your neck And a little breeze Came thru the window And you begin to wonder Why all the formulas were printed upside down And since when Miss Pooley's twin sister Was visiting her And why-why-buzz! And you heard the passing bell And woke up Just in time To stagger down to Chemistry And flop into a seat And pray that the teacher wouldn't call on you And you went back to sleep And all of a sudden Your name was called And you staggered to your feet, And blinked at the teacher, And looked at the ceiling. And finally opened your mouth AND MADE A PERFECT RECITATION!!!!!

So have we.

And did you ever Sit up till eleven-thirty Assimilating data on nitrogen And compounds of nitrogen. And marvelling At the clarity of expression And the simple progression Of the author. And you went to bed And slept like a log And got up Feeling like a lark (If you know what I mean) And at school You glanced over The lesson again. And discovered That you could recite it Backward and forward (Practically) And you waltzed down To chem. And floated to your seat And gazed at the teacher With merry, laughing eyes. And silently whistled "My Blue Heaven"

And finally
When you had almost given
Up hope
Of being called on
He said
"Mortimer Whozis"
And you leaped up
And threw your hair back
And opened your mouth
And looked at the ceiling
And blinked at the teacher
And discovered
THAT YOU DIDN'T HAVE A WORD TO SAY!

So have we.

Where have I heard this before?

"Me tui pudet"

"I'll give you some of these problems to play with tonight so you can get the feel of them."

"Oh! Jamais, jamais!"

"Nunca, nunca, nunca!"

"Well-yes."

"Yeah perhaps."

"You can work a few these dam problems for tomorrow."

"Is that your opinion, Miss - ?"

"That's interesting."

"You're quite right."

"If you do thus and so."

"Quiet please."

"You're now excused for your first period classes."

"Hey you birds!!!!"

"I thought you'd say - - -."

FOR THE CLASS OF TWENTY-NINE ONLY

(Very Private)

N every truly great and worthwhile institution there are certain traditions; deep and poignant secrets which should be given over only to those who can really appreciate them; those who can keep their deep meaning constantly in mind. Withrow High School (as all true Withrowites agree) is a truly great and worthwhile institution. Therefore Withrow, too, has traditions.

List! O class of '29, to whom the torch, the key, the gavel of '28 has been handed, list to the traditions which we of '28 have carried, locked within our hearts, this weary year. We shall explain to you as realistically, as touchingly as that worthy class of '27 explained to us these three great mysteries; why the passing signals are called bells; why there are slides in the study halls; and why dainty dandelions dot the lawns of dear old Alma Mater, all this you shall know when we have told our tale.

Long years ago, where our school—our beloved school—now stands, a tiny cottage stood, surrounded by wide pastures. Peaceful Jerseys munched the sweet meadow grass. Ah, but that was before the plans for this noble edifice were conceived. One sad day these happy cows found themselves being led away from their home—the only home they had ever known. Their happy days were ended. They were taken away to a photographer, where they posed all day long for pictures—pictures to be plastered on condensed milk cans. One fair cow among them felt the call of her ancestral acres; she could stand this awful irony no longer. So with determination she toiled laboriously back to her old home. But when she arrived there grief overcame her. Surely that was not her home—that dishevelled pile of brick and cement? Her heart ached. Never again would she be a contented cow. However even in her despair she did not lose her sweet disposition. In her last days she became friend to the workmen.

So that is the reason, when she finally moved her last and resignedly died of a broken heart, that the workmen asked that the passing signals be called Bells, in memory of that sweet, disappointed creature.

The second incident has equal depth and reason.

Once in the early days of Withrow Johnny Schimfpleschneller, a neophytic freshman, was in study hall. He was sitting there in study hall placidly nibbling on his fingernails and shooting the pieces with surprising accuracy into a nearby pocket. Suddenly his name was called. Now Johnny was sensitive—in fact we might say he was ultra-sensitive. Jumping up confusedly he hurried awkwardly to the teacher's desk.

"Schimfpleschneller, you are in the wrong seat!" The teacher pronounced this condemnation in a loud accusing tone.

Little Johnny gasped. Little Johnny blushed. Little Johnny wished very much to go through the floor. But little Johnny was unable to do this because the floor was just too solid.

Three years passed. Johnny became a senior,—a senior who really "rated." But had success made Johnny forget his sorrow of freshmanhood? No! Never! Still it rankled in his heart. So THAT is the reason, when as he was about to graduate and the faculty asked what little favor they might do for him before he left, he said with overwhelming emotion, "Make a slide in study hall so that no other freshie will have to endure what I did, without going through the floor."

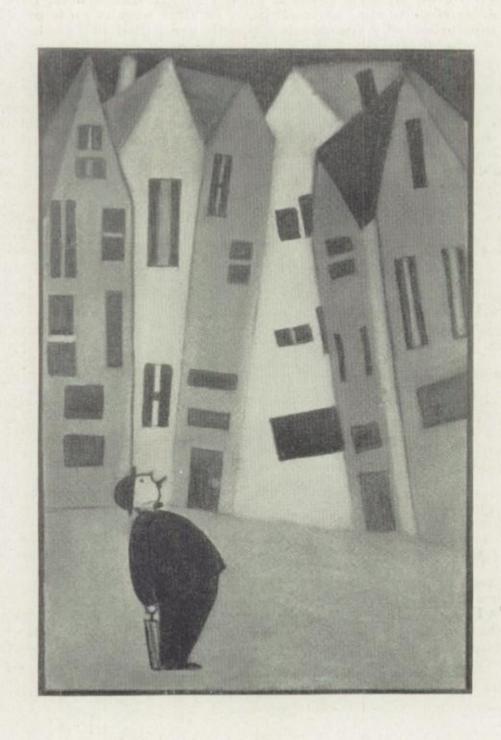

Did they do it? Well, the study halls bear mute witness that sensitive, public-spirited Johnny Schimfpleschneller really DID have pull.

And then at last, most cherished tradition of all. It seems that there was a principal at Withrow, a benign and respected man, whom all the pupils loved and considered a dandy fellow. But for months they were confronted with the problem of how to make Mr. Lyon aware of the fact that they admired him. Suddenly one of the most original Withrowites (a senior, of course) got a big idea. Stealthily one spring night a group of starry eyed young people busily traversed the lawns of Withrow.

Late spring came. The secret was out (in more ways than one). Golden headed dandelions dotted the landscape. Mr. Lyon at last understood fully the school's regard for him. So that is the reason on late spring days that Mr. Lyon is often seen gazing from the office windows at those growing compliments before him. He is duly proud that those students, and all pupils of dear old Alma Mater, feel he surely is a "Dandy-Lyon."

Thus, O class of '29, classes may come and classes may go but TRADITIONS live on forever. Cherish this secret well, O seniors to come, and pass this simple tale on as a cherished memory to those who follow in our rocky path.

EMANCIPATION

History tells us of the persistent effort of the human family in all ages, to free itself from the fetters of various circumstances considered and accepted as barriers to progress.

Contact and communication, desirable as enlightening influences, were dependent upon transportation facilities until the advent of the telephone, which provided a way for instantaneous verbal interchange of thought between individuals of various communities, first local, then national, now international.

Thus has the Telephone released us from the yoke of limited contact by the opening of the highway of speech.
